Ducks nip OSU to take second in ND race

Oregon moved half a game in front of Oregon State in the race for second in the Northern Division by tipping the Beavers in a muddy slug fest at Corvallis Friday, 12-10.

The Ducks scored four runs in the eighth inning to move ahead of OSU in the standings, a full six games behind division champion Washington State.

Tom Dodd led a 15-hit Duck barrage against four Oregon State pitchers, getting four hits in five trips to the plate including a double and a triple. Oregon jumped on Beaver ace Eric Sallee for eight runs and eleven hits in seven innings. But the loss went to Bruce Plato, whom the Ducks touched up for four runs in only 2/3 of an inning of work.

However, the Duck staff was far from immune to the same treatment as the Beavers collected 14 hits. Oregon starter Glenn Fisher went only three innings in giving up eight hits and five runs. Kelly Richardson picked up the win, though he allowed two runs in 1 2/3 innings. Freshman Dean Kegler picked up the save, working the last two frames, giving up three hits but no walks.

Steve Elam cracked his ninth homer of the season in the Ducks' four run first.

After a two-day rain delay, the two teams will try and play a double header today at Howe Field beginning at 1 p.m.

Oregon shows little vs. Alums

Oregon football coach Rich Brooks hoped to use Saturday's scrimmage against the Alumni for getting some serious problem-solving done.

But after the Ducks struggled to a 10-7 win at Autzen Stadium, numerous items remained unanswered.

"I would like to play it again," explained Brooks afterwards, "I was looking for a hell of a lot more than I got today. We still have a lot of work to do."

Heading Brooks' list of concerns was finding his starting quarterback for the 1978 opener at Colorado. Unfortunately, Mike Kennedy and Dan Daly had trouble fulfilling the leadership role Saturday. The two shared the duties over the afternoon and combined to complete only seven of 22 passes.

"The unknown quality of this football team is not looking good, and that's the quarterback position," said Brooks, "I was hopeful I could come out of spring practice knowing who is the starting quarterback. But I do not know at this point."

For the record, Mitch Hanan's 20-yard field goal with four seconds remaining provided the win. But until then, when opportunity came knocking for the Duck offense, Oregon folded.

In their opening drive, Oregon moved to the Alumni 26 where Mario Clark picked off a Kennedy pass. Late in the first quarter, Kennedy, a 1977 redshirt, moved Oregon 37 yards in five plays to the alumni 14. But a mixed-up handoff and Greg Milton's quarterback sack stagnated the drive, and Mike Babb's 40-yard field goal try failed.

Finally, after alum Jack Henderson's pass was picked off by Mike Nolan and returned 36 yards to the 13, Oregon could only produce a 26-yard field goal by Hanan.

"We got down there near the end zone a couple of times and made some bad plays by the quarterback," said Brooks. "I was disappointed we could not put it in."

Kennedy, who threw three interceptions, eventually knew some of the trouble.

"After I threw the first interception, they knew I was going for the curls, so that is what they took away. I thought if we kept going there we could score, but I made too many mental mistakes," he said.

Other than Hanan's two field goals, Oregon scoring consisted of two safeties. With 5:26 remaining to play, Norval Turner was dragged down from behind by Scott Setterlund. Four minutes later, Roy Geiger dropped a snap from center while punting from his own end zone, and George Vercelli sent him down.

Any movement on offense for Oregon came through their running backs, mainly sophomore Vince Williams.

Williams, playing on one bad wheel, ground out 81 yards in nine carries, including a 35-yard romp during the winning field goal drive.

"Vince had a badly bruised leg and was not at full speed," said Brooks, "but we decided to get him into the game."

Despite 174 yards rushing, Oregon's running game outside was dormant. With tailback Ed Radcliff idle with an injury and Don Davis only in for two plays, Oregon had nothing to show in outside gains. Thus, explained Brooks, "the Alumni could jam the middle on us."

Even though the Duck front line yielded minus 35 yards on the ground, the Alumni explored the Oregon secondary successfully through the first half. Turner headed the Alumni touchdown drive, moving the offense 65 yards in 15 seconds. After hitting Bob Palm for 55 yards, Turner found Johnny Kerr in the corner of the end zone for the score.

"Defensively we had breakdowns in the cover during the first half, but did better in the second half," explained Brooks, as the Alumni quarterbacks were grounded for the last two quarters, picking up only 18 of the 174 total yards passing.

The Alumni were granted one final attempt at victory when Bruce Jensen intercepted a side-line pass of Daly and bolted 36 yards for an apparent touchdown. Unfortunately, the Alumni had 12 men on the field and the score was nullified.
