Photography teacher to give lecture tonight

A master's degree candidate and instructor in the fine and applied arts department at the University will lecture on photography at 7 p.m. tonight.

Charlie True will present a lecture entitled "Photography as Art," at the EMU Forum Room.

True will discuss basic and advanced principles of photography as an art form in his lecture. Free and open to the public, the lecture is sponsored by the EMU Craft Center.

Youths needed to volunteer

The Eugene Commission on the Rights of Youth is encouraging people between the ages of 14 and 21 to volunteer for summer youth projects. The commission is working on projects in the areas of unemployment rights, media programs, youth legislation and youth involvement in the political process.

People interested in volunteering to help the youth commission are asked to call Andy Clement, city human rights specialist, at 687-5010.

Retiring people to be honored

A reception honoring 23 retiring faculty, administration, and staff persons will be held Thursday from 3 p.m. to 5 p.m. in the Gerlinger Alumni Lounge. A special presentation will be made at 4 p.m.

Educational critic to talk

The EMU Cultural Forum will present educator Jonathon Kozol at 8 Thursday evening in the EMU Ballroom discussing "Education in America: Reading, Writing or Brainwashing?"

Kozol is one of the most prominent and important critics of the American educational system. An author, educator and essayist, he taught in the Boston public schools in the early 1960s, until he was fired for his controversial views. He has since devoted his time and efforts to evaluations of how we run our schools and what the effect has been on young minds, especially the lack of ethical responsibility that exists in the American educational system.

A graduate of Harvard and a Rhodes Scholar, Kozol has in recent years become an influence on radical intellectual thought and educational thought.

In 1968, his book, "Death at an Early Age" won the National Book Award, and caused considerable controversy. In the book he recounts his experience in Boston, and the plight and degradation and injustice that exists in school systems.

In "Free Schools" and the widely acclaimed "The Night is Dark and am Far From Home," Kozol has advanced his attack on America's educational establishment and the society of which it is an integral part. Kozol has just returned from Cuba, and completed a soon-to-be-released book, "Children of the Revolution," concerning education in socialist countries. He will also be testifying to the U.S. Senate on this topic.
