The month-long 1978 conference begins Wednesday, July 26, at the University of Washington in Seattle and ends Aug. 25 at the University of California at Berkeley, after stop-overs in Portland, Eugene and Ashland between Aug. 7 to Aug. 22.

While in Eugene, the student delegates will hammer out a declaration calling for international peace and send 15 representatives to Washington D.C. and New York City to deliver the message to members of Congress and the United Nations.

The 1978 conference will focus on "Crisis and Stability in Modern Societies" and will include consideration of issues ranging from the pros and cons of nuclear power and national defense to the imbalance of payments between Japan and the United States.

THE TYPICAL OREGON MAN'S NAVY LOCKER.

We know Oregon's a hard place to leave. But if you think it looks good now, just wait till you come back... after you've skied in the Alps, fished in New Zealand, hiked in Spain, and gone swimming in the Aegean... as a Navy officer. We really aren't kidding when we say "Join the Navy and see the world."

You don't have to leave Oregon behind to join the Navy.

Prof. elected as Demo chairer

University Prof. Jim Klonoski, political science, was re-elected to a third term as State Democratic Party chairer Sunday afternoon.

By nearly a two-to-one margin, Klonoski defeated Portland manufacturer Moshe Lenske and Medford insurance salesman John DeZell for the position. Benton County Democrat Marge King narrowly defeated Emily Ashworth, a challenger for the Democratic nomination for governor, for vice-chairer.

During his acceptance speech, Klonoski called Oregon's Measure 6 "socialization of the rich" and said the party should oppose it in the November election.

State Sen. Vern Cook, D-Gresham, also speaking at the afternoon luncheon, told party members the property tax limitation measure is bad for Oregon and should be opposed by Democrats statewide.
