Funding: Wherefore? art thou?

Every major theater and arts group in Eugene had its props pulled out from under it last month. Their federal funds were cut off, leaving them to fend for themselves in an environment at times receptive to and other times hostile toward the arts.

The question now is this: Are we coming into a dark age of the arts in Eugene or will these groups continue to present high-quality artistic entertainment to local audiences, in spite of the obstacles? Methinks the latter. Find out why on Page 6B.
