

Dayan says solution doubtful

Egypt, Israel stall on peace

WASHINGTON (AP) — Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan told Pres. Carter Thursday negotiations on an Egyptian-Israeli peace agreement have encountered problems and chances of settling them are "very doubtful."

Dayan spoke to the president as reporters and photographers were ushered into the dining room at Blair House, where the delegations were beginning lunch.

He said the talks had encountered problems, "and whether we can obtain a change of position through the delegations is very doubtful. It's not Camp David, with the heads of state present."

Dayan, who did not say what the problems are, apparently referred to the fact that heads of state can be more flexible in making concessions than ministerial representatives, who generally arrive at a conference with strict instructions on what offers they can make.

The administration said Wednesday that Carter had not been in touch with either Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin or Egyptian President Anwar Sadat since the conference began.

However, it appeared from Dayan's comments that further discussions involving Carter, Begin and Sadat might be necessary.

White House press secretary Jody Powell, asked whether any serious snags had developed, said: "Not so far as I know."

"I don't see the basis for drawing the conclusion there is an impasse," he said at the daily White House news briefing.

It was the second time this week — the first time was Tuesday — that Dayan made a public statement which contradicted the optimism voiced by the conference's official spokesman, George Sherman of the State Department, who has reported steady progress since the talks began.

Meanwhile, informed sources said Israel is talking to the administration about a new billion-dollar aid program to finance its withdrawal from the Sinai.

Egypt also is "talking about big numbers" in seeking American assistance for an economic development program, the source said.

From Associated Press Reports

WASHINGTON — The Carter administration has quietly lifted a moratorium on most high level visits to the Soviet Union, imposed to protest actions by Moscow against dissidents and U.S. businessmen and reporters, administration officials said Thursday.

The officials, who asked not to be identified, said the new policy reflects a changed Soviet attitude, which has helped improve the atmosphere between the two countries since last summer when Moscow charged two American newsmen with slandering the government and accused a U.S. businessman of currency violations.

PORTLAND — Sixty-four percent of the Oregonians interviewed by the Portland polling firm of Bardsley and Haslacher favor reinstatement of the death penalty for murder.

Twenty-seven percent of the 606 polled opposed and the rest were undecided. The poll was completed Oct. 12.

Measure 8 on the Nov. 7 ballot would reinstate the death penalty, which was banned in Oregon in 1964, for persons who deliberately commit murder.

The poll showed the measure was supported by 70 percent of the men who were interviewed, and 59 percent of the women.

Rhodesia blasts Zambian forces

LUSAKA, Zambia (AP) — Rhodesian warplanes struck 90 miles into Zambia Thursday to pound a black guerrilla base within earshot of the capital. Guerrilla leader Joshua Nkomo said "we have lost quite a few people."

A day earlier Salisbury troops raided guerrilla camps in Mozambique. There was no word whether that raid was still in progress.
