

Sufi teacher gives talk

Sheikh Shabda Kahn, a Sufi teacher from the San Francisco area, will present a seminar at Peterson Barn Community Center, 3825 Royal Ave., on Saturday and Sunday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The seminar will be open to the public and will focus on the teachings of the Sufi masters in the areas of meditation using the breath, rhythm and sound. The seminar will be sponsored by the Smiling Forehead Sufi Center, a spiritual group associated with the Sufi Islamia Ruhaniat Society.

The cost is $12 per day, or $21 for both days. A vegetarian lunch is included.

Kahn is a disciple of the American Sufi teacher, Samuel Lewis (Sufi Ahmed Murad Chisti) and studied with him up to the time of Lewis' death in 1971. Presently Kahn studies with Pandit Pranath, an exponent of Classical Indian music.

Kahn has traveled extensively offering seminars in music meditation, dance and breath. He has performed for several years in the Sufi Choir and has led several choirs in the performance of "sacred music."

Placement office moves

The University job placement office is moving south for the winter — from Oregon Hall to 1511 Agate St.

The job service — which provides current listings of available jobs, job counseling and help with resumes — will be closed Monday for the move, but will re-open in its new location Tuesday.

University, city appear Sunday on affairs show

The City of Eugene, the University, and interactions between the two will be the subjects of a 1½-hour television program Sunday.

The program appears in the Eugene-Springfield area on KOZY-TV, cable channel 11.

The show featuring the City of Eugene and the University was filmed during the University's recent Homecoming Weekend, according to KATU producer Steve Beck.

Youths hold workshop

The Looking Glass Youth Advisory Committee is holding a workshop Saturday on Youth Rights and Legislation.

The committee, which is made up of area youth, acts in an advisory capacity to the Looking Glass Family Crisis Intervention Center.

The workshop is free, and participants will be provided with a lunch. Jeff Budd of Looking Glass says of the event, "The speakers are very knowledgeable in their fields. We feel fortunate that these people are donating their time and energy."

Couple workshop offered

"Improving Couple Communication", a four-session workshop will begin today at 7:30 p.m. at the Edgewood Church on Fox Hollow Road at E. 46th Ave. in Eugene. The workshop is offered by the Marriage Education Center, a non-profit organization whose aim is to educate for better relationships.

Cost of the four sessions is $65 per couple and pre-registration is required. More information may be obtained by phoning the center at 342-1010.
