

Social Training Given

Social and sexual training for developmentally disabled persons is the focus of a workshop to be held Friday in the EMU.

The workshop is part of the sex education project sponsored by Maternal and Child Health, State of Oregon Health Department and the Crippled Children's Division at the University of Oregon Health Sciences Center.

This is the third year these workshops have been presented for professionals, para-professionals and families of developmentally disabled persons. This year, the workshops will give an overview of sex education for the developmentally disabled for those who have not attended the workshops in previous years, although there are a number of additional new topics as well.

Workshop participants include Dr. Gerald Prescott, associate professor of medical genetics, director of the sex education project and the prenatal diagnosis clinic at CCD; Dr. Jean Edwards, associate professor of special education at Portland State University and director of adolescent and adult handicapped programs at PSU; and Penny Mock, coordinator of the sex education project.

To register, contact the sex education project, CCD, University of Oregon Health Sciences Center. Registration will be limited to 100 persons.

There will be a registration fee of $15 to be made payable to Sex Education Project.

Human image seminar slated

"Forging a New Image of the Human Being," a three day seminar on the nature and growth of the human being, will be offered Friday through Sunday by the Eugene Waldorf School Association, Rivendell Kindergarten, and the Eugene-Springfield Foundation for Anthroposophic Studies.

Guest lecturer for the seminar will be Rene Querido, Director of the Sacramento Center for Anthroposophic Studies. Querido has been internationally active in the Waldorf School movement as well as the general Anthroposophic movement for over 30 years.

The seminar will be held at the Edison Eastside Community School, 22nd and Emerald St. in Eugene. Preregistration will begin at 7:15 p.m. Friday. A donation of $15 per person or $20 per couple will be asked for the full seminar. Individual events may be attended for a donation of $3 each.

Friday, the seminar will begin at 8 p.m. with a lecture and discussion by Querido entitled, "A Modern View of Karma and Reincarnation: The Destiny of Man and Woman." At 10 a.m. Saturday Querido will offer a seminar "Understanding the Growing Child in Body, Soul and Spirit." This will be followed at 11:30 a.m. with a workshop on "form" or "dynamic" drawing. Moureen Heyman, a teacher at the Rivendell Kindergarten, will begin at 2 p.m. following a puppet show, with a discussion of puppetry and young children. Saturday's final event will begin at 3:30 p.m. with a workshop on speech.

The events of the seminar are appropriate for adults only, and for information call 746-8411.

Tenant workshop offered

Repairing a dwelling when the landlord refuses, terminating rental agreements and handling eviction threats are some of the topics to be discussed at a Tenant Workshop Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in Room 167, EMU.

The workshop is co-sponsored by Off-Campus Housing and the Office of Student Advocacy. Both offices will answer tenants' questions about the law during and after the workshop.

Sharon Hill, Director of Off-Campus Housing, said the workshop will focus on major housing problems faced by Eugene-area tenants, which often involve some kind of negotiating with the landlord.

According to Hill, the low vacancy rate in Eugene also poses problems for tenants because their threats to vacate often have very little meaning for the landlord.

Hill said that these problems all arise from "the big problem, which is the fact that one or both parties involved don't know their rights."

The workshop is intended to benefit both tenants moving in December and those staying in the same dwelling.

Tenants also must inform the landlord of absences of more than seven days to avoid being responsible for damage cold weather could do to pipes and to increase protection against theft or fire.

Anyone with questions about the workshop can stop by Off-Campus Housing in Suite 3 of the EMU or by calling 686-3731.
