

oregon daily emerald

Vol. 80, No. 65 Eugene, Oregon 97403 Wednesday, December 5, 1978

Fire and rain

Students resumed the mildewing process Monday as winter decided to let anybody and everybody know it's here to stay. Umbrellas mushroomed around campus as scurrying students attempted to elude the inevitable creeping wetness. This shrouded smoker decided to battle the weather one on one and valiantly lit up a soggy cigarette.

Photo by Doug Williams

today

The creation of a quiet zone on the Willamette River may be the solution to a controversy over the operation of a jet boat service between Valley River Inn and Harrisburg, says the director of the State Marine Board. See Page 6.

In continuing its commitment to better undergraduate services, the University has expanded the academic advising program with an outreach program to help troubled undeclared students. See Page 7.

Human walls fall as students of the human potential movement strive for a higher consciousness. Bob Trask conducts ARAS seminars to help people abolish their limitations. Story on Page 11.