

glen ozonewood all my children

Guess I'm just too nice a guy. Honesty and respectfulness get me nothing but compliments from my grandmother and awards from the Kiwanis club while that sleazo Durantz spends more evenings with beautiful women.

Kelly called off the wedding (she overheard Eddie bragging to Claudette about the fifty grand he was to get from Phoebe) and split, but Eddie didn't spend even a week alone. Thursday, he took to the sheets with Claudette.

He ended up at her place against her wishes really, but once in the door, he put the move on her. There was token resistance, but she just moaned as he slipped her straps over her shoulders exposing (though the camera cut away) her ample bosom.

Actually, Eddie's just killing time (and Claudette's an enjoyable way to do it) 'til Kelly runs out of drugs. Withdrawals, he reasons, will bring Kelly crawling back, and hello 50,000 bucks.

Maybe Kelly will get help, though. Eddie crowed to Linc about the certainty of Kelly's return. When pressed for reasons for his cockiness, Eddie arrogantly told Linc to ask Kelly. So that's what he's doing and maybe she'll tell him the whole awful truth. Linc might help her leave the world of drugs and Eddie Durantz behind.

But it's tough to lose anything permanently in Pine Valley. Most thought they'd seen the last of Ray Gardner, but he's back and ready to cause trouble.

Wednesday found him lurking around the Martin's, hiding in the dark and finally taking to the cellar. He planned to wait until everyone was asleep but came close to alerting them when he set off a rat trap. Ray's linking with those loathsome vermin didn't stop there, 'cause when everyone finally crashed, he sneaked upstairs and helped himself to some cheese in the fridge.

It started getting real crowded (Danny and Phil both came home) and Ray split before he could finish whatever dastardly deed he came to do. Bet he'll be back. Next morning, Ray's visit (remember, he got sent up the river for raping Ruth) was discovered. Joe saw that the back door was mysteriously unchained. He doesn't need the results of the fingerprints to know Ray was in his home. Joe's highly educated, but trash like Ray could easily awaken primal violence that superior training long ago suppressed.

And finally, one of the show's longest running crises finally surfaced: Phoebe now knows the truth about Charlie's parentage. Her indignation at not being told sooner doesn't change the facts. Her "grandson" was sired by Chuck's friend, Phil.
