

Meeting on dam planned

A public meeting to discuss the proposed Strube Dam will be held by the Army Corps of Engineers Tuesday at 1:30 p.m. in the main meeting room of Harris Hall, Eighth Avenue and Oak Street.

The dam, authorized by Congress in 1962, would be built two miles below Cougar Dam on the McKenzie River's South Fork, about 45 miles east of Eugene.

The project, estimated to cost $51.9 million, also includes adding a 35,000-kw generating unit to the Cougar powerhouse, which now has two 12,500-kw units.

Students offered Lifelong series

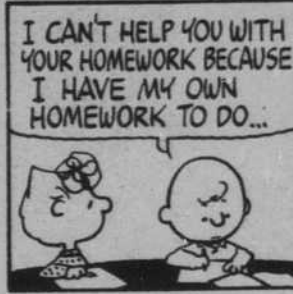

The University Lifelong Learning Services is sponsoring a series of brown-bag lunches for "non-traditional" and mature students.

The next one, featuring an open discussion, is Tuesday at 11:30 a.m. in the EMU, room to be posted. For more information, call Karen Likens at 686-3211.

Corrections, amplifications

Kathy Keene, deputy director of Lane Council of Governments, says that her decision to leave her position at L-COG was not made at the appropriate time for personal reasons. She was inaccurately quoted as saying the choice was made at an appropriate time.
