

Blair Fair scheduled

University students involved in the federally funded University Year for Action in conjunction with students in an architecture class are sponsoring "Blair Fair" Sunday at the Whiteaker Community School Gym.

The fair will focus on drawings describing alternatives for future development in the Blair Neighborhood. Responses to these ideas will help direct future planning in the Whiteaker Neighborhood.

The public is invited to the fair, scheduled from noon to 10 p.m. For more information call 343-2711.

Art history candidate to give talk

Frances Pitts, a candidate for the position of renaissance art historian in the University department of art history will speak on "Visions of Hell: Dante's Inferno and Nardo di Cione" today at 2:30 p.m. in 166 Lawrence Hall. The talk is free and open to the public.

Counseling to be featured at conference

Several of the country's outstanding researchers and practitioners will participate in the "Behavioral Theory and Therapy" conference this weekend at Valley River Inn.

The University psychology department, the Division of Continuing Education and a student committee, Pathfinders in Human Personality, are sponsoring the event.

"The program will cover several of the main areas of behavioral counseling and is expected to be one of the major conference events in counseling psychology this year," says Pathfinder chairer, Joanna Hoskins.

Among featured speakers is Robert Weiss, University psychology professor.

Horse logging discussed

Horse logging in Oregon will be discussed by Jim Manning Sunday at 5 p.m. at the University's urban farm.

The gathering will also feature an open house, a potluck and musical entertainment in the farm house.

The event is open to the public. The urban farm is located off Franklin Boulevard behind the Harvester.
