

Groups plan protest

A coalition of student groups will hold a protest rally and march Wednesday at noon on the EMU terrace to show concern for the survival of black history at the University says Wisson West, director of the Black Student Union.

Information on the history department's policy toward Afro-American history and the status of its current search for two new faculty members will be available at BSU tables set up on the EMU terrace, today from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. and Wednesday from 9 a.m. until the noon rally, says Wisson West.

The rally and subsequent march to the history department office is intended to "make students aware" of the importance of the black history course to students of all races.

Old Oregon receives award

Barbara Edwards, editor of the University's alumni magazine, Old Oregon, has received a "Pacesetter" award from the Oregon Communicator's Association for the winter, 1978, issue of the publication.

The winter issue of Old Oregon included a cover photograph and feature article on the University Museum of Art's collection of Russian icons, or religious paintings and castings, and articles on personality development in infants and an English professor's course on detective fiction.

Plant walks scheduled

The curator of the University herbarium has scheduled plant tours of Alton Baker Park leaving at the north end of the Autzen Footbridge every Tuesday at 12:30 p.m.

Dave Wagner will host Plant Watch 79, the third annual series of weekly plant walks through the park.

Wagner says that nearly 100 different varieties of plants begin flowering in Alton Baker Park by the second week in June. The walks will be open to anyone interested. For more information, call the herbarium offices at 686-3033.

Greek flag flies today

The flag of Greece will fly today at the EMU in honor of the country's independence day. The actual date — March 25 — came during vacation, so an alternate date was picked.

The flags of seven foreign nations will fly below the U.S. flag on the EMU flagpole this month as a part of the University's Flag of Nations program.
