Discussion groups open

Fifteen parent discussion groups are being organized for parents who want to improve their relationships with elementary and pre-school age children. The groups are an extension of Lane Community College's Community Center for Family Counseling, which is sponsored by the University and Lane Community College. Parents can learn times and locations for the groups by calling Carol Lynn Morse, 688-5509.

YMCA opens programs

The Eugene Family YMCA is also sponsoring a weekly seminar beginning today for adults called "Live For The Health Of It!" The seminar will be held from 7:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. and run through June 4 at the YMCA, 2055 Patterson St. Interested adults are asked to pre-register. Topics will include behavior modification, nutrition, exercise, activity and stress reduction.

For more information, contact Ruth Beers or Chris Buell at 686-YMCA. Registration begins today for spring tennis classes at the Eugene Family YMCA. The classes will be held April 23 to May 31 in the tennis center at the YMCA, 2055 Patterson St. The classes will be held Monday through Thursday. Basic, intermediate and competitive skills will be offered in separate classes. Classes are available for adults and youths.

Fred Friendly speaks tonight on news ethics

Fred Friendly, a former president of CBS News, will visit the University of Oregon tonight. Currently a staff consultant for the Ford Foundation, he will give a brief lecture and serve as moderator for a panel of Oregon journalists and lawyers discussing "The Mass Media and the Law." The 7:30 p.m. lecture and discussion in the Erb Memorial Union ballroom will be part of the School of Journalism's fourth annual Ruhl Symposium on journalism ethics. The public is invited and no admission will be charged. According to Galen Rarick, journalism school dean, the panel discussion will focus on two hypothetical confrontations between the media and the police and courts.
