

Arts and Entertainment

Thursday, May 3, 1979

Reviewing the critics

The critics were sure wrong about that one.

They said that was funny?

In the review I read,
he said it was the best
play of the year.

In the review I read,
she said it stank like
week old fish.

And he said the female lead was captivating! Yeah, like a female officer at a concentration camp.

In the review I read, they described that actor as bad as Burt Reynolds in At Long Last Love. But I thought he was like another George Raft!

She hated the set?
God, she'd probably hate the Taj Mahal, too.

Well, what do they know? What do they know about acting and the theater? I bet none of them could even make their high school drama club.

And who says they have the right to tell us what's good and what's bad?

They probably do reviews because they can't do anything else....

The critics. The critics of Eugene. Lately they've been taking more than they've dished out.

For some insight into their thoughts and lives, please turn to Page 4B.