

Exploring the wild blue yonder

emerald sports

weekly supplement

The Emerald Sports Magazine

Wednesday, May 16, 1979

Wings to fly

The allure of hang gliding lies in matching wits with the elements. The sport, one of the most dangerous mass-participation sports in the United States, can give its aspirants a bird-like freedom. For story see Page 48. Stories on ballooning, sky-diving and flying are also found inside.

