

County seeking panelists

There is one opening on each of two Lane County commissions.

The Lane County Commissioners are looking for citizens interested in serving on the Mental Health Advisory Board. The 17-member committee evaluates the service and organization of the county's Mental Health Program, advises the commissioners and the Mental Health Division on policies and serves as liaison between citizens and the Mental Health Division.

The commission recommends adoption of subarea plans to the board, makes recommendations on ordinances which implement the plans, and acts on certain requests dealing with zoning and other land-use matters.

Persons interested in either of these positions are encouraged to submit an application by June 1. Application forms are available at the Lane County Community Relations Department, 125 E. 8th Ave., and at the information desk in Harris Hall. Application forms will be mailed on request; call 687-4488 or toll-free 1-800-452-6379.

Small dams discussed

A Eugene Water and Electric Board engineer will discuss "low head hydropower," the technique of producing electricity with small dams, Wednesday at the University.

Jim Brown, who is studying the feasibility of and best techniques for producing energy with small dams, will show slides of existing "low-head" dams during his free public talk at 12:30 p.m. in the EMU, room to be posted.

Low-head dams are classified as those less than 66 feet high.

The talk is being sponsored by the University Solar Energy Center. For more information call 686-3631.
