

Three get honorary recognition

The father of jogging, a popular Oregon teacher and a distinguished philanthropist and conservationist have been honored as recipients of the University's Distinguished Service Awards.

Bill Bowerman and Grace Morris of Eugene and Edmund Hayes of Portland will receive their awards during the University's 103rd commencement ceremony, scheduled for 2:30 p.m. June 10 at Hayward Field.

The awards, an alternative to the honorary degrees conferred by some educational institutions, are given for contribution to life in Oregon.

Bowerman served as track coach for the University from 1948-73 and has been credited with giving Eugene its title of "Track City, U.S.A." His coaching methods are noted for helping individuals gain athletic and academic success.

A University graduate, Bowerman coached the U.S. Olympic track-and-field team at the 1972 Games in Munich. During his 24-year coaching career at the University, he recorded four NCAA titles, completed 10 seasons of undefeated dual-meet competition and placed 16 teams in the country's Top 10.

Bowerman also produced 24 individual NCAA champions, 38 conference champions and 51 All-Americans. Additionally, Bowerman developed a lighter, running shoe and an improved track made of urethane.

Morris has taught Oregon and Pacific Northwest history at the University through the Division of Continuing Education for almost 30 years.

She is described as a meticulous researcher and a teacher of unusual ability and enthusiasm.

Morris holds bachelor's and master's degrees from the University. While serving as supervisor of teacher training at Oregon College of Education, she developed a course on Oregon history and began her lifelong interest in the subject.

Hayes, a retired vice president of the Weyerhaeuser Co., is recognized for his philanthropy and conservation efforts. He founded the Keep Oregon Green Association, which has significantly contributed to fire prevention.

Hayes is also founder of the Willamette Valley Tree Farm movement and has served as president of the West Coast Lumberman's Association.

Nominations for the University's Distinguished Service Awards come from a student-faculty committee and are approved by the University.
