

Scholarship bank offers service

University students can receive up to 50 scholarship sources through the Scholarship Bank, a newly announced non-profit organization.

The Los Angeles-based organization offers students information on scholarships, and according to attorney Steve Danz, director of the bank, students can save about 100 hours of research by using the service.

The bank offers two programs. The basic $25 service guarantees students information on at least 15 scholarship sources and a $35 deluxe package promises up to 50 scholarship tips.

The service supplies students with information based on the findings of a questionnaire which covers a variety of pertinent personal, academic and career topics.

Students are given a full refund if the bank fails to supply them with the promised number of scholarship sources.

Danz believes that any program applicant should be able to obtain enough scholarship assistance to pay for room, board and tuition.

According to Danz, the bank gets its scholarship information from professional sources and through correspondence with scholarship programs. Eanz emphasizes that the service's library of 15,000 scholarship sources allows it to supply students with information on both large and small scholarship programs.

"People that go to financial aid offices get good service in the big grants, but financial aid offices can't offer help with the small scholarships," says Danz.

The service's records indicate that of the scholarships the program offers information on, 30 percent are based on need, 30 percent on merit and the remainder on other factors.

The program has been in operation on an experimental basis since last January and according to the Los Angeles office of the Better Business Bureau, the bank has a satisfactory service record.

The Scholarship Bank does all its business with students by mail. Students may obtain further information on the bank by sending a self-addressed envelope to The Scholarship Bank, 10100 Santa Monica Blvd., 750, Los Angeles, CA. 90067, or by calling its toll-free number: 800-327-9191.

Debaters place second

The University Forensics Squad captured second place at the Lewis and Clark Forensics Tournament Oct. 19-20. The team dominated individual events for the second tournament in a row. The debaters lost a close 2-1 decision in the semifinal round of debate and prevented the team from capturing its second straight sweepstakes title.

The following students reached final rounds: Lori Shaff, first place, junior extemporaneous speaking; John Nelson, second place, senior oral interpretation; Lowell Axtmann, second place, senior oratory; Jeff White, third place, rhetorical criticism; Scott Weber, fourth place, senior extemporaneous speaking; Greg Hatcher, fourth place, junior oral interpretation; and Tom Peters and Jim Dasso, third place, senior debate.

This week the squad is attending three tournaments out of state.

A career in law—without law school.

After just three months of study at The Institute for Paralegal Training in exciting Philadelphia, you can have a stimulating and rewarding career in law or business — without law school.

As a lawyer's assistant you will be performing many of the duties traditionally handled only by attorneys. And at The Institute for Paralegal Training, you can pick one of seven different areas of law to study. Upon completion of your training, The Institute's unique Placement Service will find you a responsible and challenging job in a law firm, bank or corporation in the city of your choice.

The Institute for Paralegal Training is the nation's first and most respected school for paralegal training. Since 1970, we've placed over 2,500 graduates in over 85 cities nationwide.

If you're a senior of high academic standing and looking for an above average career, contact your Placement Office for an interview with our representative.

We will visit your campus on:
