

Career Fair set for Jan. 17

Students will have an opportunity to meet directly with representatives from many different professions at the University's fourth annual Career Fair on Thursday, Jan. 17.

Throughout the day, students will be able to talk informally with 150 professionals, asking them specific questions about their jobs or employing organizations.

"We've made a special effort to include representatives from career areas which have greater than average employment prospects for college graduates of the 1980's," says Allen Lowe, graduate fellow in the University Career Planning and Placement Office and one of the fair's coordinators.

Center offers alcohol fact sheet

An alcohol fact sheet has just been published by the University's Drug Information Center. The four-page booklet covers the effects of alcohol and how to use the drug responsibly.

According to director Mark Miller, the fact sheet discusses the extent of alcohol problems in the United States, its effects
