

Carter, Reagan post landslide primary wins

Pres. Carter and Ronald Reagan, the delegate-rich candidates for the White House, got richer Tuesday night with landslide victories in the Indiana, North Carolina and Tennessee presidential primary elections.

Sen. Edward Kennedy and GOP challenger George Bush countered by winning in the District of Columbia. Kennedy beat Carter while Bush won uncontested by Reagan.

The delegate arithmetic pushed Carter past three-quarters of the delegate strength he needs to win Democratic renomination. Reagan was leading for delegates that put him near that same mark on the way to the Republican nomination.

Among them, the four primaries awarded 223 Democratic nominating votes, and in partial returns, Carter led for 164 of them, to 59 for Kennedy. That would put Carter's nationwide total at 1,309; he needs 1,666 to clinch the nomination. Kennedy's projected total is 718.

Tim Kraft, Carter's deputy campaign chief, claimed the president's own projected total puts him about 200 delegate votes of a majority. Kraft said that should give Kennedy "second thoughts" about continuing his campaign.

Jody Powell, White House press secretary, said there's no chance Kennedy will be the Democratic nominee. Powell said it would be Carter versus Reagan in the fall.

Reagan led for 108 of the 140 GOP delegates at stake Tuesday, a performance that would swell his total to 744 of the 998 delegates needed. Bush led for 32 delegates to bring his count to 170.

Despite the setbacks, Bush's campaign manager said the challenger would come back. "We've been buried three times in this campaign," said

James Baker. "We fully expect to be back."

Bush said before the polls closed that he would neither abandon his quest for the White House, nor accept the vice presidential nomination if Reagan offered it.

He spent the day campaigning for New Jersey's June 3 primary.

In Nashville, Tennessee Sen. Howard Baker said he would run with Reagan if asked. He also said the longer Bush remains in the Republican race, "the longer it'll postpone the day when we can all rally behind the man who, barring extreme unforeseen circumstances is going to be the Republican nominee."

Could you use an extra $100.00 a month this term?

There are lots of ways for a student to earn extra money. But most employers require regular hours. And even if your class schedule happens to fit your employer's need, midterms and finals often don't. If you're healthy and reliable, in two to four hours a week, being paid on the spot, you can earn up to $100.00 cash a month! Easily on a flexible schedule to accommodate you. Become a blood plasma donor. Once or twice a week, visit the nearby Hyland Donor Center. Donating plasma is simple and safe. In fact, the donation process, called "plasmapheresis," removes from blood the only element it needs - the plasma. Other whole blood elements, the red cells, are returned to you. Want to know more? Need that cash now?
