Take A Llama To Lunch

Anybody wanna buy a llama? How about a Rogue River camp trip? Dinner for two at Poppi's? A complete fly-fishing outfit? A tomahawk? Or maybe even an Environmental Impact Statement Review? All the above, and much more, may be picked up at the First Annual Wild Oregon Fair and Auction Saturday at the Lane County Fairgrounds.

The purpose of this environmental event is to provide an entertaining and educational forum for public lands and public waters issues, as well as have a good time and discover the unknown and uncrowded parts of Oregon.

More than 60 conservation groups, government agencies, outdoor clubs and local retailers will be involved in the day-long event.

Running concurrently with the fair in two adjacent rooms are slide shows and workshops on forest wilderness, desert wilderness, wild rivers and outdoor photography. Gary Braasch, a renowned Oregon photographer whose work has frequently appeared in many magazines, will present two multi-media slide shows in conjunction with his outdoor photography workshop. One of the shows, "What is Revealed," is about the desert and was written by Finn Rock author Barry Lopez.

A benefit auction highlights the afternoon beginning at 3:30 p.m., with a special multi-screen slide show on last year's solar eclipse produced by Gary Grimm and Katy Flanagan of the University's Outdoor Program. The auction begins immediately after the eclipse program, with Russell Sadler sharing the auctioneer duties with Ken and Constance Redman of Redman Auction Co. in Sweet Home. Another Grimm-Flanagan slide show of a ski trip in Mt. McKinley National Park will end the auction.

The exhibits wind up at 7 p.m. with everyone who attended during the day invited to dance the night away with the Smokey Valley String Band at 8:30 p.m.

Doors open at 11 a.m. Cost is $2 for adults, $1 for students and seniors, and free for those under 12. This event is sponsored by the Oregon Wilderness Coalition, the Outdoor Program and the Willamette Valley Observer.

$1.25.
