

University promulgates amendment alterations

The University is proposing adoption of four amendments to permanent rules, including an amendment which establishes procedures for commercial solicitation at the University's family housing areas.

The amendments will go into effect after filing with the Office of the Secretary of State after the close of the public comment period Oct. 15.

Under the proposed amendment to the University's rule on commercial solicitations and transactions, persons wishing to solicit door-to-door in the Amazon and Westmoreland family housing areas must complete a request-to-solicit form at the area office each year. Solicitations will be limited to once per term.

Amendments to the Student Conduct Code outline the organization and function of an Interfraternity Council Tribunal and an IFC Appeals Board, as well as the composition of a Residence Halls Appeals Board. Another amendment details the right of preemptory challenge of a hearings officer.

Two other amendments concern annual setting of traffic fines and of rents for family housing. Under the proposed amendments, the fines and rents will be listed each year in the University's "Special Fees, Fines, Penalties and Service Charges" list rather than being promulgated separately.

Copies of the amendments are available at several campus locations, including the Office of the President, 110 Johnson Hall, and the Office of the ASUO President, Suite 4, EMU. Individuals wishing to present views or request a hearing may do so in writing to Muriel Jackson, Assistant for Administration, Office of the President, 110 Johnson Hall, Eugene, Or. 97403, before 5 p.m. Oct. 15.

EXHIBITION 7 PM

Oriental rugs have been enthusiastically collected since the 16th century, but currently there is a mad rush for them. Sales in the United States alone have increased almost 400% in the past few years. Oriental rugs in the past, ancient, and modern times, never lost popularity for the following reasons:

- Oriental rugs reflect the true simplicity and harmony of all works of art. They blend well with and enhance both modern and period furniture.
- Oriental rugs are a great investment and increase in value with age.
- Oriental rugs are easy to care for. The pure natural handspun wool resists dirt and grime.
- Oriental rugs last a lifetime.

We apologize to those who attended the auction on 8/29, but due to a breakdown of our truck we could not make the auction. Therefore we are rescheduling the auction to the above date.
