Schroeder still eludes police

Eugene police have called off a search of the Skinner Butte area for convicted sodomist John Paul Schroeder, but on Monday police and county sheriff's detectives still were checking leads concerning the escaped felon.

Schroeder, recently convicted on charges of sodomy, burglary and attempted rape, escaped Friday night from the Lane County Jail in Eugene. He also is a suspect in dozens of sexual assaults on women in the west University area.

Marcia Morgan, Lane County Sheriff's crime prevention specialist, says both Eugene police and the Sheriff's department are asking the public to report any persons that may fit Schroeder's description.

Schroeder is described as being a 30-year-old white male, 6 feet 3 inches tall, 180 pounds with blue eyes and long brown hair often worn in a pony tail. He last was seen wearing green jail clothes with the initials LCAC stenciled on the shirt's back.

Schroeder apparently used a wrench to break a small four-ply laminated security glass window in his jail cell and climbed to the ground with a rope made of bed sheets.

Morgan says the sheriff's department is looking at security problems in the jail as a result of Schroeder's escape.

Officers with the Eugene Police Community Officers Patrol Team say the department is mostly back to normal after searches of the Skinner Butte area were called off Monday.

Officers say anyone concerned about home security since Schroeder's escape can arrange for a free security check by the Eugene COP Team, 687-2677.
