

A New Plan for Better Service

The Main Library has been reorganized. The new system simplifies the organization of books and consolidates user services. There is now one reference desk instead of four, from which the librarians will be able to provide better reference service. Clerical routines will be more efficient because they are now arranged by function, such as the maintenance of unbound periodicals, rather than being divided by subject division where staff had several different responsibilities. If you have further questions about the reorganization or about Library services, please ask a librarian for information.
