Women cagers rip Cards, 97-62

Smith sets career record

By TAMARA SWENSON
Of the Emerald

Before the Oregon women's basketball team took on "Pacific-10 Conference" foe Stanford Friday night, the career scoring record for the Ducks women stood at 1,392 points.

Five minutes into the second half, Bev Smith tied the record. One minute later, she broke it. By the end of the game, Smith either owned or had tied every record in the Oregon book.

But despite the standing ovation from the crowd after she sank the basket that tied Julie Cushing's 1976-80 record, Smith was the first to point to the team's effort over the visiting Cardinals. "Everyone played well tonight — as a team."

After a tough fight against rival Oregon State only two days earlier, everything went well for Oregon as it rolled to a 97-62 victory over Stanford to raise its record to 18-5.

Predictably, the talk during the "celebration" timeout called by Oregon immediately after the record-tying basket talk didn't revolve around congratulations.

"We all patted her on the back, but we wanted to change our defense at that time," said Oregon coach Elwin Heiny about the timeout.

So Oregon switched to a zone defense, the crowd waited for that record-breaking basket, and the Ducks kept their winning streak going.

"Things like this tend to take away from the team effort," said Smith in the McArthur Court training room long after the fans had dwindled away. "The ironic thing is that most of those points (579 last season) came off assists from Julie."

As a team, the Ducks hit 53.8 percent from the floor and 61.9 percent from the line. Oregon out-rebounded the Cards, 41-33, grabbed more steals (14-3) and had fewer turnovers (11-29).

And everyone who took to the court played well, said Oregon coach Elwin Heiny.

But the crowd, while it rewarded the Ducks for their outstanding play, had a special place for Smith Friday night. The standing ovation was only part of it. A special banner and constant cheering for most of the second half was a good indication of how the crowd felt.

Smith, a 6-1 junior, besides setting a career record of 1,404 points, added 26 points to Oregon's game total, collected 10 rebounds and nabbed eight steals.

"She'd make us a great team, too," said Stanford coach Dotty McCrea. "She's the first player I've seen in years that reminds me of Carol Blazejowski, but she's more aggressive."

Smith wasn't the only Duck to play an outstanding game. MaryAnn Stoican, who added 12 points, also grabbed 10 rebounds, while Alison Lang earned nine points and seven rebounds.

"Diane (Hiemstra) has become a very consistent player," Heiny said. "She may not pressure as much, but her playing time reflects how well she's doing." Only one Duck had more playing time than Bev Smith, grabbing a rebound here against Oregon State, set an Oregon scoring record versus Stanford.

Hiemstra's 26 minutes, Smith with 29.

Stanford coach Dotty McCrea handed out more praise to the victorious Ducks than Oregon allowed itself.

"USC is the only team that compares (to Oregon) in terms of physical, tough play," McCrea said. "We tried everything . . . they're a very poised ball club."

And that poise, said McCrea, could carry them all the way in the nationals.

"That's what's important," said Smith. "Not the individual records but the team one."

"I feel it was a nice accomplishment for me but it's not something that will make my year."

What will make Oregon's year is a trip to the final four, but before then, the Ducks have five more league games to play, all in Mac Court, and the regional championships.

"We want to play each game with as much enthusiasm and effort as we did tonight," Smith said. "Then we can build off those wins for regionals and nationals."

Bruins sprint past ASU

From Associated Press reports

Taking advantage when Arizona State's 7-foot center Alton Lister got into foul trouble, eighth-ranked UCLA outscored the taller Sun Devils 15-2 in a second-half burst Saturday and hung on for a 64-61 Pacific-10 Conference basketball victory.

The win improved UCLA's Pac-10 record to 9-3 and left it a single game behind second-place Arizona State, 10-2, in the conference standings. Unbeaten Oregon State, number two nationally in the AP poll, remains entrenched in first place at 12-0.

In other games involving Pac-10 teams, Oregon State downed St. John's 57-45, Southern Cal defeated Arizona 81-71, Washington rolled over Stanford 89-71 and California topped Washington State 73-65 after trailing by 15 in the second half.
