

Court reservation system relieves overcrowding

A new reservation system is helping to relieve the overcrowding of the racquetball and tennis courts on 15th Avenue.

In the three weeks the reservation system has been in effect, lines have been eliminated and community use has declined, giving University students a greater chance to use the covered tennis and racquetball courts, says Karla Rice, director of the University Internurals program.

In the first 14 days, 325 racquetball and 75 tennis court reservations were received. Courts are closed for morning PE classes. Reservations have been filled during peak hours — 3:30-8:30 p.m. Rice predicts use of the courts will increase during spring.

Reservations must be made the day before play in Room 103 Esslinger between 8 a.m. and 11:30 a.m. The master list is posted in both the room and in the courts.

In response to student suggestions, Rice says she expects to extend the reservation hours until 2:30 p.m. next term and allow reservations for the day of play.

"It's sort of a hassle, having to go to the office the day before," says Kim Black, who plays in the courts regularly. "I think it's worth it though. At least you're sure of getting somewhere to play."

But not all players are pleased with the reservation system.

"It destroys the spontaneity of play," says Mike Fiske. "How many people know a day in advance when they want to play?"

Some people play without reservations, especially on the relatively empty tennis courts.

"I've never had a reservation," said one tennis player. "It's too much trouble when there's always empty courts."

The 15th Avenue courts are the only ones on the reservation system. Esslinger racquetball and uncovered tennis courts on 15th Avenue and Alder Street are available on a first-come, first-served basis.

Evaluations, as well as sheets expaining the reservation procedure, are available in Room 103 Esslinger.

It isn't everyday somebody asks your opinion...

During this month, Lane Transit District is holding a series of public workshops... The purpose of these workshops is simple: We'd like to hear your ideas for making bus service in Eugene-Springfield even better than it is today... It's an opportunity to work with LTD: and to make the bus system work for you.

This is an open invitation... everybody is welcome. Bring your family... or a friend. And let's work together for an effective mass transit program in Eugene-Springfield.
