

Vet loan interest rates increase to meet state's costs

SALEM, Ore. (AP) — The director of the state veterans' home and farm loan program today increased the 5.9 percent interest rate to 6.2 percent on most existing loans and to 7.2 percent on loans applied for after last Dec. 31.

The increase is the first one since May 1971, when the legislature authorized variable interest rates for veterans' loans. Rates on loans made before then are set by law at 4 percent.

Staryl Austin, director of the Department of Veterans' Affairs, said veterans with loans made after May 1971 will have a choice of having their monthly payments increased or accepting a three-year loan extension and keeping their payments the same.

He said the interest increase on existing loans would raise the monthly payment by about $9.90 on a $50,000 loan.

Austin said the interest increase on new loans will mean a monthly payments boost of about $50 on a $50,000 loan.

Officials have said an interest rate increase was inevitable because the state has had to pay close to 9 percent interest on bonds sold to finance the loans.

A $240 million bond sale is scheduled for April 7, and Austin said interest bids probably will be near the maximum 10 percent that the state can pay under state law.

Lucia is one of those rare films that deals with the role of women in history. In its depiction of the classically machismo Latin culture, Lucia puts into clear perspective those longstanding social attitudes and customs which have determined the second-class status of women.

Lucia is at one and the same time, a Unique view of Cuban History and Latin American culture as well as a dramatically engaging examination of women's worldwide struggle for social equality.
