Could you use an extra $100.00 a month this term?

There are lots of ways for a student to earn extra money. But most employers require regular hours. And even if your class schedule happens to fit your employer's need, midterms and finals often don't. If you're healthy and reliable, in two to four hours a week, being paid on the spot, you can earn up to $100.00 cash a month! Easily... on a flexible schedule to accommodate you. Become a blood/plasma donor. Once or twice a week, visit the nearby Hyland Donor Center. Donating plasma is simple and safe. In fact, the donation process, called "plasmapheresis," removes from blood the only element it needs — the plasma. Other whole blood elements, the red cells, are returned to you. Want to know more? Need that cash now?

Oregon undergoes housing sprawl

Oregon, like much of the rest of the nation, experienced "household sprawl" during the last decade.

Oregon's population grew 26 percent during the 1970s, but the number of housing units grew by 45 percent — from 745,000 to 1.08 million — during the same period, according to Karen Seidel, research associate with the University Bureau of Governmental Research and Service.

As a result, Oregonians are spread out in more but smaller households. Seidel, whose current research focuses on the 1980 census data, said she estimates Oregon's average household size "decreased by approximately 12 percent from 1970 to 1980, from 2.94 to 2.59 persons per household.

"This implies that if Oregon had had no population growth at all in the past 10 years, almost 100,000 housing units would have been added to the inventory just to meet the demands of the 1970 population," she said in a paper prepared for presentation at the 1980 Census User Conference.

Seidel said the significant difference between the population and housing growth rates occurred in every county in Oregon.

"The disparity between population and housing growth in the past decade becomes more newsworthy if we contrast it to the preceding decades. During the '40s, '50s and '60s, the rate of housing growth in Oregon was always about two percentage points higher than the population growth rate," Seidel says. For example, between 1960 and 1970, the population grew 18 percent, housing 20 percent. Between 1970 and 1980, however, the difference was 19 percentage points.

Seidel attributed the decline in size of households in Oregon to well-known social, economic and lifestyle factors "such as the baby boom, postponed marriages and childbearing, more elderly people maintaining separate households."

Family households are down from eight in 10 to seven in 10 in a decade. Fewer than four in 10 households are families with children living at home.
