

Live Music

• Today at 12:30 p.m., Joel Schwarts, guitar; Connie Speake, piano; and Jim Grondin, alto saxophone, will perform a "Musical Smorgasbord" in Room 198 in the music school.

• At 8 p.m. tonight, New York Philharmonic French hornist William Kuyper will give a lecture-recital featuring music for horn and strings in Beall Concert Hall.

• Larry Hanks and Laura Smith, traditional folk musicians, will perform at Condon Magnet Arts School (1787 Agate St.). Tickets are $3 at the door for the 7:30 p.m. show.

• Tomorrow and Saturday the final audition days for the annual Ruth Lorraine Close scholarships.

Auditions begin at 8:30 a.m. each day in Beall Concert Hall at the music school. The auditions are open to the public, but listeners are asked to enter the hall between auditions.

A list of the Close winners will be posted in the music school after the judges reach their decision Saturday night.

The judges include: William Kuyper, associate principal horn of the New York Philharmonic; Morton Feldman, internationally known composer from the State University of New York at Buffalo; Susann McDonald, harpist on the University of Southern California faculty; and Gwendolyn, pianist also from the University of Southern California.

Approximately $55,000 will be awarded in amounts of $1,000, $2,000 and $3,000 for full-time students of harp, voice, keyboard, all orchestral instruments, composition, music history or music education.

The awards were made possible in the early 1970s through a bequest from the late Ruth Lorraine Close, a harpist and composer who attended the university.

• Lisa Neustadt, a singer from Boston; the Playing Possums, a country string band; Sweetgrass, a women's a cappella singing troupe; and Small Change, four women who play "eclectic" string band music perform in the Wesley Center production of "An Evening of Traditional Music" on Saturday. Concert time is 8 p.m. and admission is $3.

Neustadt sings gospel, sea chanteys, work songs and ballads with easy-to-follow chorus lines. She emphasizes audience participation. She has recorded two albums, Angels Hovering 'Round and Shout for Joy, both with Jean Redpath and the Angel Band. In April she will be recording Dear Companions.

The Playing Possums, made up of Andy Murdzek, Sam Jones, John Hicks and Spence Hollinger, are familiar to the Eugene folk music community. This group accompanies their music with a wide array of instruments, including guitar, banjo, fiddle and slide guitar.

Sweet grass (Wanda Walker, Pearl Rohrer, Quism, Karen Stingle and Lorrain Ironplough) have been singing together for a year and a half. The group was started by several members from the old Eugene Women's Choir.

Small Change plays music both serious and comic — highlighted by three and four-part harmony. For more information, call 343-9680.

• Elvin Bishop comes to Eugene for a March 15 performance at Grand Illusions (412 Pearl St.).

Bishop, the "down-home country boy, National Merit Scholarship winner and the man who recorded the smash single 'Fooled Around and Fell in Love'" takes to the stage for two shows: 7:30 and 10:30 p.m.

Tickets are $5.50 in advance and $6 at the door. Advance tickets are available at both locations of Everybody's Record Company, at Mr. Mike's Really Reusable Records, and at Grand Illusions. Call Grand Illusions at 683-5104 for more information.
