Oregon's men's baseball team will travel to Pullman, Wash. this weekend to take on Washington State in a three game series after a tough California road trip that saw

Top foes await softball team at invitational

Oregon's softball team will face stiff competition this weekend as the Duck women travel to the Pony Invitational at Fullerton, California.

The Ducks will take on the University of Southern California in the first round of the tournament, which includes the top teams from southern California — UCLA, Cal State-Fullerton, Cal-Santa Barbara and Cal State-Northridge.

Oregon is 3-3 for the season after completing a swing through central California.

The Ducks home opener will be April 9 with Oregon State.

Oregon's record go from 3-0 to 7-5.

But the Ducks have some tough games under their belt as they face the perennially strong Cougars. Included are losses to Cal-Berkeley, Stanford, and San Jose St., three of the more established programs in Northern California.

Oregon will face its number one obstacle to the Ducks hopes of winning the Northern Division.

The Cougars were 36-10 last year, placing them as high as fourth in the nation, and their 11-3 conference record earned WSU the Northern Division title.

The Ducks struggled to 19-21 and 6-10 marks last season.

"I think we are capable of winning it," says baseball coach Mel Krause. "I always go in looking to win every game."

The series opens Saturday with a 3:00 p.m. game and concludes Sunday with a doubleheader beginning at 1:00 p.m. The Ducks will be home Monday to face Linfield College.

Golfers challenge rivals for second

While women's golf powerhouse Washington is the heavy favorite to win the Portland Invitational, the Ducks are aiming to beat rival Oregon State for second place, says women's golf coach Jenny Feeney.

When the two teams met earlier this spring at the Husky Invitational in Seattle, OSU edged the Ducks 1,128-1,190.

"Oregon State's program is about a year ahead of us," Feeney says. "They have more depth but I expect the difference to close really quickly."

Oregon's women's golf program made its return to the University last fall when it was reinstated as a University sport.

The Ducks could catch the Beavers if "Marti Loeb is feeling well and we get good support from the others," Feeney says. Loeb was Oregon's number one golfer before she injured her back at the Husky Invitational.

Sue Schoedal has taken Loeb's place as Oregon's top golfer, returning to collegiate competition after a two-year absence. Schoedal shot a team-low 278 at the Husky Invitational.

The 54-hole Portland tournament will also offer a new twist — it will be played on three different courses.

"The variety will be nice," Feeney says. "Everybody is in the same boat so I don't think it will be an advantage or disadvantage for our team."

Despite failing to qualify in the Oregon State Invitational because of a shortage of golfers and placing ninth in the Husky Invitational, Feeney says, "I'm pleased with the team attitude. Even though we haven't scored well, we have kept our spirits up the next day."

Tennis squad enters tourney

Oregon's women's tennis team will compete in a tournament at Southern Oregon State College this weekend.

The Ducks, 4-1 this season, are lead by freshman Lindsay Bartlett. She is undefeated at the number one singles position. She has only lost one match in tournament play.
