It was business as usual for Alberto Salazar against Washington after an "easy" 13:34.45 in the 5,000.

Hurd shatters record in TJ

By JOHN HEALY
Of the Emerald

Lamar Hurd had a personal best of 48-6 in the triple jump last spring at the end of his senior year at Garfield High School in Seattle, Wa.

A good, but not great, prep mark.

But Oregon needed a jumper in the worst of ways, so they offered Hurd a full scholarship, hoping he would eventually give the Ducks respectability in the horizontal jumps.

Oregon head coach Bill Dellinger and assistant coach Dennis Whitby were right — Hurd has brought the Ducks respectability in the triple jump.

Not eventually, though.

Right now.

Saturday, while the Ducks were dismantling the Washington Huskies 107-56 at Hayward Field, Hurd was leaping to a new school record in the triple jump.

His mark of 51-9¾ broke Gary Lacey's record of 51-0 and marked the third consecutive meet in which Hurd has improved his personal record in the event.

"I didn't think I would be going this far today, to be honest," said Hurd. "But I'm going for 52 feet so I can qualify for the NCAAs. That's been my goal all year."

"This is the best he has looked," said Whitby, who coaches the triple jump.

Even better jumps may be in store, added Whitby, once a couple of kinks are ironed out of Hurd's form and the weight program he has been on begins paying off.

"He has a lot of strength work to do," said Whitby. "It's a sort of dynamic strength that will allow him to maintain his speed on all three phases of the jump. We're still working on that."

Dellinger had some early worries about this meet, but they were quickly dispelled.

Stan Link's 8:54.21 win in the steeplechase, Jon Switzer's pole vault win with a 17-0 effort and Larry Bradley's second in the 200 (21.22) and third in the 100 (10.53) gave Dellinger breathing room in events he rated as a toss-up.

Sophomore Dean Crouser set a meet record with a toss of 205-6 in the discus; sophomore David Mack and senior Mike Friton finished side-by-side in the 1,500 meters, Mack winning 3:44.85 to 3:44.87; Dwight Robertson won the high hurdles in a wind-aided 14.12; Oregon's 400 relay team clocked a 40.24, a new meet record; Vince Goldsmith heaved the shot put 63-10; and Alberto Salazar pushed himself to a time of 13:34.45 in the 5,000.

Salazar's and Crouser's wins were especially notable because each turned in an exceptional performance but claimed it was just an average effort.

"I was happy because I wasn't even psyched," said Crouser, who has improved his discus best by over 19 feet this year. "I know I can get better and I'm sure I can get Mac's record (Mac Wilkins' mark of 212-6, set in 1973)."

Salazar sees a lot of room for improvement as well.

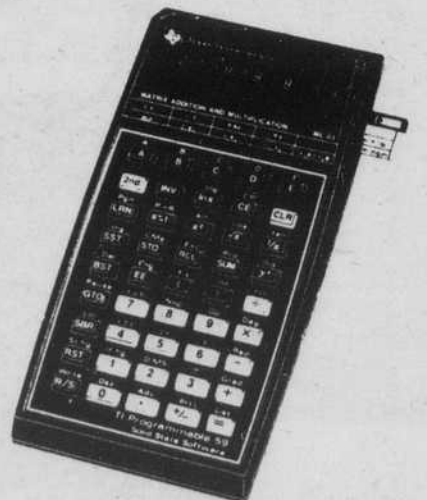

"I had a sore throat all week and slight congestion," explained Salazar. "(Dellinger) doesn't want me to go all out right now but he wants to get me used to a fast pace so when I run that pace it will be that much easier."
