You Can Still Make A Difference

While careers in public service may not be as fashionable as they were a decade ago, such careers can be very rewarding and personally satisfying.

After just three months of intensive training at The Institute for Paralegal Training, you will be prepared to work in government agencies, public service organizations and law firms as a Legal Assistant in the fields of Administrative and Public Law or Criminal Law. You will do work traditionally performed by attorneys. You will work in the dynamic field of government legislation and regulation and be involved in such areas as: Environmental Law, Food Drug and Health Law, Criminal Justice, Equal Opportunity, Welfare, Energy, and Product Safety Law.

Furthermore, you will earn graduate credit towards a Master of Arts in Legal Studies through Antioch School of Law for all course work completed at The Institute.

We are the nation's first and most respected school for paralegal training, and since 1970, have trained more than 4,000 college graduates from across the country.

If you are a senior of high academic standing and looking for a meaningful career, contact your Placement Office for an interview with our representative.

We will visit your campus on:

Lexie Miller (far left) and Kris Costello (far right) clear the first barrier in the 100 hurdles. Miller's 14.14 time was an Oregon record.

Miller wins three events, sets two Oregon records

Oregon coach Tom Heinonen seemed to be in another world as he sat on a bench Saturday following his team's 74-53 humbling of the Washington Huskies.

When asked for an assessment of the afternoon, Heinonen fumbled for some words. And when he found them, it became obvious his problem was an attack of Bruin-itis.

"I don't know if we have enough guns for UCLA," he said, referring to next Saturday's meet against the powerful Bruins. "We're heading in the right direction. I don't know if it's far enough, though."

There were enough good performances to prompt a Heinonen smile — three wins and two school records for Lexie Miller, another school record in the discus by freshman Karen McDonald and a barrelful of personal bests.

But there were some nasty moments, too — notably two Oregon disqualifications in early events that meant a 14-point turnaround in the final team score.

Sally Harmon, after winning the javelin, was found to have illegal tape on her throwing hand. The tape was being used to truss up two sprained fingers.

The second disqualification occurred in the 400 relay when Grace Bakari apparently left too soon for the second exchange. She eventually received the baton from Kris Costello, but not before she had stepped out of the passing zone.

But a couple Oregon miscues weren't enough for the outmatched Huskies, who won nine of 15 events but couldn't back up the victors with many seconds and thirds.

One Husky, Regina Joyce, outshined everyone with a Hayward Field record of 9:04.41 in the 3,000-meter run, breaking the old mark of 9:08.8 set in 1975 by Francie Larrieu.

But the finest Oregon performance was that of Miller, who had missed much of last week's practices with a groin strain. The sophomore from Somers, Mont. won the long jump (18-7), 100 hurdles (14.14) and 400 hurdles (1:00.95). The last two marks broke her school records of 14.22 and 1:01.19.

Miller was also pleased with teammate Kris Costello. After missing last year with an injury, Costello is roaring back. Her second-place 14.21 time in the 100 hurdles was also under Miller's old record. Costello also had seconds in the 100 and 200.

Miller said she and Costello have "gone back and forth" during hurdles practices, exchanging wins. "That's the way it's been at every damn practice."

On the field, McDonald continued her onslaught on the Oregon discus record, raising her own week-old mark of 161-9 to 164-6. Her throwing series was consistent and impressive — 157-2, 164-6, 158-5, 159-11, 160-9.

"Getting into the 160s was my first goal," McDonald said. "Now I hope to get into the 170s. But mainly I just want to be consistent."
