THE RETURN OF THE SECAUCUS '7

Rarely does an independent American film receive such attention and praise as Secaucus 7, making just about every "10 best" film list of 1980 in the nation. In his directional debut, 30-year-old John Sayles has fashioned a highly personal, perfectly realized film about the reunion of old friends, former political activists of the 60's who are now turning 30. They reminisce, play together, make love, talk about making love, re-define their relationships and try to come to grips with the future while at the same time holding on to their experiences of the past. The naturalness of the cast is irresistible. Make way to discover these important new talents.

The Eighth Northwest Film Festival Tour

This collection of films represents some of the cream of this year's independent Northwest films. The judge was Amos Vogel, one of this country's leading film scholars and founder of the New York Film Festival. Shown will be: THE HOMETOWN by Bettina MatzKuhn from Vancouver, B.C. Animated embroidery and original lyrics reflect Bettina's feelings about her hometown, Vancouver. CUTS, by Charles Gustafson, Seattle, is a sensitive, probing investigation of the interlocking relationships between man's need to produce, his technologies, and the earth from which he takes his resources. SUNSET, by Rick Brown of Bellingham, is a straightforward object lesson in film magic, ably carrying out the filmmaker's intention: "sometimes wishes do come true." PALM SUNDAY, by Karl Krogstad of Seattle, is a hilarious pastiche of movie cliches, monsters, and wonderfully bizarre paranoia. Will Vinton Productions of Portland, produced DINOUSAUR. This claymation film is a zingy combo of hilarious comedy and genuinely informative educational matter. Ending the program is THE MAN WHO DIGS FOR FISH by Jack Long of Vancouver, B.C. It is a portrait of Frank Jenkinson, retired handlogger who wants to "give nature a little help."

KRAMER

Director Robert Benton's 2nd feature film carried off 5 Academy Awards in 1979. Dustin Hoffman and Meryl Streep shine in this film about parents entangled in a legal and emotional tug-of-war for their child. Joanna Kramer, feeling stifled by her role of wife/mother, leaves home for a time. Her husband, Ted, a workaholic advertising executive, suddenly finds himself having to be homemaker/mother to a son he hardly knows. Later, when Joanna returns to resume custody of their son, she and Ted engage in an extensive battle over who is to raise him.
