

Reunion marks Ducks, Beaver meet

It will be a reunion of sorts Saturday for Bill Dellinger and Frank Morris.

Morris, in his third year as head coach of the Oregon State men's track and field program, was an assistant at Oregon under Dellinger from 1974 to 1979.

Recognized as one of the country's top weight event coaches, Morris moved up to Oregon State in 1979 when the Beaver's head coaching position opened.

But the frequent successes that Morris enjoyed as a coach at Oregon have been few at Oregon State.

The Ducks pounded the Beavers by hefty margins in Morris' first two years at Oregon State. Oregon won 126-37 in Morris' first year and 106-57 last year.

"I'm sure they will be improved this year," says Dellinger.

One of the few areas in which Oregon State will be favored is the 400 meters, where the Beavers have Kasheef Hassan, the number two ranked 400 runner in the world in 1979 and a former World Cup champion.

Hassan, from Sudan, has been slow to round into form this year. He has run 46.8 this year but has a lifetime best of 45.18.

Oregon will counter with sophomore Parrish Nixon, who has a best this year of 46.98 but only ran 47.50 in the Duck's 97-56 win over Kansas last weekend.

Perhaps the best matchup of the day will be in the javelin, where Oregon's Reidar Lorentzen faces Oregon State's Rich Wolf.

Lorentzen, troubled by back problems earlier this spring, appears to have regained much of his power. He won the javelin against Kansas with a toss of 260-11, his second best throw this year, but has a lifetime best of 286-6.

Wolf, who competed for Lane Community College two years ago, has thrown 264-11 this year.

The pole vault will feature six vaulters who have career bests of over 16 feet, but the vaulter with the top mark - Oregon's Jon Switzer - won't compete.

Switzer has a lifetime best of 17-9, but has missed the Duck's last three meets because of an injured hamstring.

Beyond those events, it will be a matter of how many points Oregon can score.

Dellinger has done quite a bit of shifting, moving his athletes into events in which they don't normally compete.

Two of the Duck's best individual athletes, Don Ward and Lamar Hurd, will move out of their specialties this weekend.

Ward, who missed last week's meet against Kansas, will shift from the 400 intermediate hurdles to the open 400, while Hurd, who has the second-best triple jump mark in school history, will be limited to the long jump.

Sprinter Larry Bradley will sit out the 200, concentrating on the 100 and the two relays, while Nixon will double back from the 400 to run his first 200 of the year.

Dean Crouser, who has won the discus in the Duck's last five meets, will see if he can get any closer to his goal this year of surpassing the NCAA record.

Crouser broke Mac Wilkins' 1973 school record of 212-6 in the discus with a toss of 213-0 last week. He needs a mark of 214-7 to break Borys Chambul's record, set in 1976.

For Oregon fans who travel to Corvallis, Crouser's tosses in the discus could provide most of the meet's highlights.

But then, an NCAA record isn't exactly boring.

Dwight Robertson, who has run a 14.16 in the 110-meter hurdles, hopes for a faster time against Oregon State.

Twelve soccer squads meet at Churchill High

Twelve soccer teams will converge at Churchill High School this weekend for the Southern Oregon Soccer Referees Association Invitational.

Two University teams, Suds Factory and DeFrisco's, will participate. Other teams hail from Coos Bay, Portland and Grants Pass.

Competition will begin Saturday from 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. and continue Sunday starting at 8:30 a.m. The semi-final games will start at 2:30 p.m. Sunday, followed by the championship game at 5 p.m.

The invitational is co-sponsored by the SOSRA and Budweiser.

Lacrosse team faces tough foe here Saturday

Lacrosse enthusiasts will have a chance to watch Oregon's club sport lacrosse team in action Saturday as the Ducks square off against Mt. Rainer.

"Mt. Rainer is a strong team," says club sport lacrosse coach Bob Bristol. "But if we play with the same intensity that we did in Portland, I think we can beat them."

The game is scheduled to begin at noon on the intramural field, located between Hayward Field and the covered tennis courts.

ROCK 'n ROLL

STORIES

They're back by popular demand . . . STORIES. Two months ago, they brought the house down with their outrageous, good time rock 'n roll music. Don't miss this hot six-piece group from Portland this weekend at O'Callahan's.
