New rules would affect medical leave

The University has proposed amendments to its student medical leave rules that will allow appropriate health center professionals to evaluate a student's medical condition when mandatory leave is being considered.

The amendments, which delete obsolete information and reflect current titles, also give the University authority to act in the absence of appropriate action by a student's family and permit a psychiatrist of the University's choice to attend a conference to determine a student's medical condition.
