Women win (yawn) region

Track team captures 13 of 19 events

By JODY MURRAY
Of the Emerald

It's getting pretty damn obvious that Oregon has outgrown the Northwest in women's track.

During the past dual meet season, the Ducks met three Northwest foes and defeated them by a cumulative total of 122 points. Oregon then capped that feat last weekend in Corvallis at the regional championships by outdistancing the field by 119 points. It was the Duck's fourth consecutive team title.

"We're just too deep for this kind of competition," said Oregon coach Tom Heinonen after witnessing his mile relay team cap the meet with a 3:49.49 win at Oregon State's Wayne Valley Field.

Softball rematch awaits women against Beavers

Oregon's women's softball team will face Oregon State today in a rematch of a game that rained out last month.

The Ducks, 9-14 for the season, split a double-header with the Beavers May 1, winning the second game of that contest 6-2 off a Yogi Johnson homer that scored three runs in the first inning.

Freshman Marcy Sowa, who has stepped in to backup pitcher Teri Anderson who has a sore arm, pitched the win.

"We're looking for another

Oregon not only won 13 of 19 events in the three-day meet, but captured a truckload of seconds, thirds, fourths and so on.

Heinonen was most pleased with javelin thrower Sally Harmon and sprinter Melanie Batiste. Harmon defeated a stellar field on her first throw — a season-best 168-5. Batiste, hampered all season by a hamstring injury, won the 200 for the fourth straight year to become only the third to accomplish that feat in regionals.

"After losing a tough one to (Oregon State's) Asa (Pennington) in the 100, she came back and demolished the field in the 200," Heinonen said of Batiste. The Oregon senior clocked a 24.65 in the 200, followed by teammate Lena Fritzson (25.41) and Pennington (25.49).

The whipping winds, however, prevented Oregon's sprinters and 400 relay from meeting the AIAW qualifying standards, which Heinonen had hoped they could do at this meet.

"You take one look at the way the flags are blowing and you forget about qualifying marks," Heinonen said.

Harmon, who put the AIAW qualifying mark behind her a long time ago, continues to improve this season despite her "transition" work during practice. Harmon is learning a new throwing style, and that usually means a slight dropoff in performance until that style is perfected.

Harmon, however, was a model of consistency, following her winning throw with tosses of 167-9½ and 164-5.

Oregon's Lexie Miller was put to work by the meet's schedule as she shuttled between the long jump and both hurdle races. She won all three, as expected, even though she only had enough time to step up to the line and go in the 400 hurdles.

"I didn't have time to run through some hurdles before the race," she said. "So I let my body run it and not worry about my mind."

First-place finishers:

100 — Asa Pennington, OSU, 12.3. 200 — Melanie Batiste, Ore, 24.65. 400 — Grace Bakari, Ore, 54.0. 800 — Ranza Clark, Ore, 2:11.9. 1,500 — Sandra Gregg, UW, 4:22.9. 3,000 — Regina Joyce, UW, 8:59.39. 5,000 — Eryn Forbes, Ore, 16:48.3. 100 hurdles — Lexie Miller, Ore, 14.43. 400 hurdles — Miller, Ore, 1:01.9. Rockets tie up series, 91-86

HOUSTON (AP) — Mike Dunleavy and Moses Malone led a third-quarter Houston charge that carried the Rockets to 91-86 win over the Boston Celtics Sunday to tie the National Basketball Association championship series at two victories apiece.

Malone scored eight points to lead a 10-2 Houston surge and give the Rockets a 60-52 lead with 7:56 left in the third quarter.

Then Dunleavy scored 11 points in the last 6:14 of the third period to help the Rockets take a 75-67 lead into the fourth quarter.
