Northwest poet reads her work

Poet Sandra McPherson will hold a workshop on writing and poetry and read from her works today at the University and at LCC.

McPherson, former poetry editor of the literary magazine "Antioch Review," will give a reading at noon in the LCC Board Room. She will talk about writing and developing poetry on campus during a 2:30 p.m. workshop in Room 142 Straub Hall. A second reading will be held at 8 p.m. in the EMU Forum.

McPherson's poetry has appeared in several magazines including "The New Yorker," "Harper's" and "Poetry Northwest." Her first book of poetry "Elegies for the Hot Season," was a selection of the National Council of the Arts. The poet's most recent books are "Radiation" and "Year of Our Birth."

The University's Creative Writing Program is sponsoring McPherson's visit in cooperation with the LCC language arts department. The program's lecture series is supported through matching gifts from the Time-Life Foundation and University alumnus Kenny Moore.

A marathon competitor in the 1968 and 1972 Olympics, Moore received a master of fine arts degree in creative writing in 1972. He is now a senior writer for Sports Illustrated magazine.
