

Veterans need to enroll in health care program

Active duty military personnel and retirees who have moved to Oregon since Oct. 31, 1980, should check with their personnel office to enroll their dependents in the Defense Enrollment Eligibility Reporting System (DEERS).

DEERS is a mandatory new program for checking eligibility for Department of Defense health care benefits. The program has been operational in Oregon since July 31 of last year.

When an individual enters a military hospital or clinic, his or her eligibility for treatment may be checked through either a computer terminal or a telephone hook-up.

The checks are made against a data base containing information on those eligible for defense department benefits. Enrollment on the data base is automatic for all active duty personnel and retirees receiving annuities. However, it is the sponsor's responsibility to enroll his or her eligible dependents.

Retirees not receiving annuities and survivors must enroll themselves as well as their dependents.

Enrollment in DEERS is being implemented on a phased basis across the country. South-eastern Virginia and Northeastern North Carolina were the first to join the new system, beginning in Nov. 1979.

Until implementation is complete and the data base is accurate, no one will be denied medical care if he or she is not enrolled in DEERS. However, once the program is fully operational, those who are proven ineligible for treatment may be billed for the services they receive.

Information on what is needed to enroll your dependents can be obtained by contacting your nearest parent service Personnel or Customer Service office. DEERS Field Maintenance Representative Cheryl Clinton can be contacted at (707) 644-9991 or by writing the DEERS Field Maintenance Office, CSTSC, Building H-1, Room 217, Mare Island, Cal., 94592.
