After moving from sixth to second on his final throw in the shot put, Vince Goldsmith left for Canada.

Speed Continued from Page 7

"I just really ran a dumb race," said Chapa of the 1,500 as he rested after the 5,000 later in the day. "You'd think by now that I'd be able to run with a group of people, but I ran it like it was my first race ever."

"I thought I was in danger of being disqualified (for pushing through the pack), but I tried not to push them too hard."

Chapa blamed part of his performance on the past season, in which he has been on and off the track with various ailments. Confidence suffers, he said, when you don't get several races under your belt.

While Chapa pondered Raby was effervescent. "My strategy was to sit and wait unless the pace wasn't fast enough. This is a big team victory because this meet has been pegged as a match between the Oregon distances and the Arizona State sprinters."

This time, with Raby's help, speed prevailed.
