Two campus childcare facilities give parents an opportunity to find a center that fits their needs.

Centers offer choice for parents in selecting summer childcare

Student parents looking for summer childcare won't have to go far to find facilities that suit their needs.

The University's two centers — the EMU Child Care Center and the Child Care and Development Center — will continue to offer programs for toddlers (ages 15 months to 2½ years) and pre-schoolers (ages 2½ to 4½ years).

A summer program, "Getting to Know Ourselves and Our Environment," is planned by CCDC for elementary-age children on a half-day or full-day basis. CCDC also cares for infants ages 3 months to 14 months.

Although both facilities observe a first-priority admission policy for student parents, non-student parents also are encouraged to apply.

"The quality of programs, innovation and close adult-child ratio make CCDC a child center to be explored by all parents," says CCDC coordinator Mary Curtis-Gramley.

Craft workshops, puppet shows and swim trips are a few of the events planned for elementary age children at CCDC this summer. Younger children will receive similar "hands-on" experience geared to their age group.

EMU childcare rates are $1.10 an hour for pre-schoolers and $1.25 an hour for toddlers. CCDC rates are $1.10 an hour for pre-school and after-school hours, $1.50 an hour for toddlers, and $1.60 an hour for infants. Both facilities offer scheduled, occasional-use and drop-in service when staffing and space permit.

A childcare subsidy will be available summer term to student parents using University child care facilities. To be granted a subsidy, which is sponsored by the ASUO, parents must turn in a completed financial aid form to the financial aid office and complete a childcare cost form that is available at either University day-care center.

From this information the EMU staff, which administers the program, will calculate the amount of subsidy to be awarded.

For more information on the subsidy or childcare centers, call the EMU Child Care Center at 686-4345 or the Child Care and Development Center at 686-4384.

Other community childcare services will be available during the summer, says Jackie Glover, a referral aid at the Lane County Coordinated Child Care Council. A complete list of day-care centers currently is being comprised by the council that will include information on ages, hours, kinds of programs and costs of the various community facilities.

The council also will provide names of neighborhood day-care homes to parents interested in a specific area of Lane County. Call 4-C's at 342-5456 for further information.
