Recreation finishes ninth

The University's Department of Recreation and Park Management has been ranked ninth in the country among all such programs, joining a host of other University departments which have been awarded a national ranking in the last year.

According to the recent national survey of faculty members belonging to the Society of Park and Recreation Educators, the University's recreation department is one of only two schools west of the Mississippi River listed in the survey report.

The award is the second national ranking for the University's College of Health, Physical Education and Recreation. Earlier this year, the Department of Physical Education's doctoral program was rated fifth among all such programs in the country.

Other award-winning departments and schools include the College of Education, which is ranked 13th among 600 education colleges in the United States, and the doctoral program in art education, which is rated one of the top two for the quality of its faculty.

The faculty of the Department of Psychology is among the top 10 in the United States, Canada and Great Britain, and the forensics program in the Department of Speech is among the top two percent of all intercollegiate programs in the nation.

"We have felt for quite awhile that our department is one of the major leaders nationwide," says Larry Neal, a University professor of recreation and park management and a SPRE board member, "and now we have this survey to support our beliefs."

According to the survey, the top recreation departments ahead of the University, in order, are Indiana, Illinois, Penn State, Texas A&M, Maryland, North Carolina, Michigan State and North Carolina State.

The University has the only accredited recreation department in the Northwest, according to Neal. It also is the only department on the West Coast offering a doctoral degree in recreation.

Student wins award

Third-year law student Janie Burcart has received the University School of Law's 1981-82 Paul Patterson Memorial Fellowship, which provides a $2,000 scholarship for the academic year.

Burcart was awarded "Best Brief" in the 1981 Advanced Appellate Advocacy competition and was a member of the 1981 state champion oral advocacy team. She is also a member of the 1981-82 National Moot Court team.

She has been selected as one of four tutors in the 1981-82 law school academic support program. Burcart completed her bachelor's degree in American studies at the University of Sussex, England, in 1969. She earned a master's degree in sociology from the University of Mexico in 1971 and spent two years in the doctoral program in sociology at the University.

SEMINARS

The University School of Business is sponsoring a free educational workshop on investment opportunities in solar energy. The workshop will be held today in Room 338 of Gilbert Hall, from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m. Topics will include the feasibility of solar power in the area, tax credits available for the installation of solar systems and the total financial picture in residential and commercial solar installations.

FELLOWSHIPS/SCHOLARSHIPS

The University's Robert D. Clark Honors College will use part of a new $10,500 grant to offer research fellowships to about 20 senior students with outstanding academic records and promising research or project plans. Fellows will be awarded up to $400 each from the funds, granted by the Oregon Community Foundation through its Carl and Alma Johnson Fund.

Contributions to the David John McCosh Memorial Scholarship in painting are currently being solicited by the University Foundation. The scholarship, available to undergraduate students of painting, has been established by the late painter's widow, Anne McCosh. Those wishing to support the scholarship may send their contributions to the University Foundation, P.O. Box 3346, Eugene, Ore., 97403.

MISCELLANEOUS

The University Summer Concert Band will perform Wednesday at 12:30 p.m. on the front lawn of the music school. University music professor Wayne Bennett will direct the band in "Folk Dances" by Dmitri Shostakovich, "Chorale and Shaker March" by John Zdechlik and "Florentiner March" by Julius Fucik. The 45 member band, which is composed of students and community members, will then perform under three guest conductors. Tony Armore will lead "Trauersinfonie" by Richard Wagner. Ken Ayoob will conduct "Danzon" by Leonard Bernstein, and Cecil Pretty will direct "English Folk Suite" by Ralph Vaughn Williams. Call the School of Music at 686-5678 for further information.
