

Libraries add extra quiet study spaces

By HEIDI SWILLINGER

The Architecture and Allied Arts and Science libraries will be open the same hours as the main library this year to provide students with more quiet places to study.

The libraries will be open Monday through Thursday from 8 a.m. to 11 p.m., Friday from 8 a.m. till 6 p.m., Saturday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Sunday from 10 a.m. to 11 p.m., according to Virginia Parr, assistant librarian for public services.

Otherwise, library rules are much the same as last year, Parr says.

Since a new student lounge was opened last spring, Parr says the "no food or drink" policy will be strictly enforced. The lounge, located on the ground floor of the library, has several hot and cold vending machines, as well as designated smoking areas.

In addition, the EMU lunch van will be parked at the Kincaid Street turnaround during lunch hours on weekdays.

This year, books will be due on Wednesdays, and can be checked out for the usual two week period. Parr warns that students are responsible for books checked out in their names and says a 25 cent fee will be charged for every day a book is overdue.

Fees for overdue books on the reserve list or books called in at another person's request will be as high as $1 a day.

Parr says the library doesn't notify students that books are overdue except in special circumstances. A good policy, she says, is to make a point of returning all books if a student plans to leave town for more than three days.

Students who neglect to pay library fines may have trouble completing enrollment procedures, because the fees will go on their bills at the business office, Parr says.

Fines at the library's reserve book room, where students sign materials out for short-term use, range from 25 cents to $1 an hour, she says.

Members of the community not affiliated with the University are allowed access to the library as long as they are over 16, have valid identification and are not enrolled in high school, Parr says. "Town Patron" cards are available at the circulation desk at the main library.

Parr says students who wish to know more about the library can register for a three-credit course entitled "Use of the Library." The course will be offered Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays at 10:30 and 12:30 and Tuesdays and Thursdays at 11. For business and economics students, the class is offered Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays at 9:30.
