money for childcare subsidies through incidental fees, Gramley says. Subsidies should be applied for through the financial aid office. Student parents pay on either a monthly or daily basis, depending on whether the children attend half-day or full-day sessions.

The EMU childcare facility, located on the ground floor of the EMU next to the craft center, is set up on an hourly basis, with the cost dependent on the child's age. Student parents can reserve times for their children during registration week.

CCDC and the EMU Child Care Center stay open during the regular academic calendar, with the same breaks and holidays that the University observes.

Friendly hosts needed

Interested persons may now sign up to host University students from abroad through the annual "Friendship Family Program" operated by the Foreign Student Friendship Foundation.

The foundation promotes international understanding and world friendship by encouraging intercultural activities, says Liz Litchman, an advisor in the University's international services offices.

Friendship families are expected to provide foreign students with opportunities to gain an understanding of American culture. Families can help students by orienting them when they first arrive, inviting them to dinner occasionally, accommodating them as guests in their home, taking them on trips to the coast or mountains and helping them adjust to life in Eugene, Litchman says.
