Egypt, Israel pledge cooperation

WASHINGTON

The Egyptian and Israeli ambassadors predicted Tuesday the Camp David peace process will survive the assassination of Anwar Sadat.

But U.S. and diplomatic sources agreed the death of the Egyptian leader greatly complicates efforts to devise a lasting Arab-Israeli peace.

Sadat staked his career and his life on the Camp David accord and on good relations with the United States. His death raised immediate questions whether his successors could, or would, follow that path.

Though Sadat's successor, vice president Hosni Mubarak, is considered a staunch friend of the United States, it simply isn't known whether his government will be strong enough to follow Sadat's policies — unpopular among Egypt's Arab neighbors and among Sadat's domestic opponents.

"We are very, very worried," said an Israeli source here who didn't want to be identified. "It's a very severe realization how shaky the situation in Egypt is, and how shaky the peace is."

British reforms exclude demand

BELFAST, Northern Ireland

The British government offered a "take-it or leave-it" package of prison reforms Tuesday that excludes the key demand by Irish nationalists that they be granted political-prisoner status.

The proposal, in response to cancellation of the Maze prison hunger strike that had cost 10 lives, got a cautious response from the Irish Republican Army's legal political arm. The Roman Catholic church hierarchy welcomed it, but leaders of Northern Ireland's Protestant majority called it a "sell-out."

Northern Ireland Secretary James Prior said convicted guerrillas can wear their own clothes instead of prison-issue garb and will get half the parole time lost through cellblock protests restored if they call off their campaign and obey prison rules for three months.

He also pledged limited "free association" within the wings of the H-shaped cellblocks of the Maze prison near Belfast — center of the protest campaign — and some relaxation of rules on penal work.

Children face loss in earnings

BOISE, Idaho

Nine persons who claim they suffered permanent psychological and physical damage from the Bunker Hill Co.'s lead smelter face a lifetime loss of wage earning potential ranging from 15 to 50 percent, a vocational counselor testified Tuesday.

Janet Mott, a vocational rehabilitation counselor from Edmonds, Wash., said the former Kellogg residents, now 6 to 21 years old, will lose up to 50 percent of their potential lifetime wage earnings because they face a drastic reduction in the number and types of jobs they will be able to perform.

Mott's testimony came on behalf of the six children of Ed and Janice Dennis and the three children of Bill and Emily Yoss, who are suing Bunker Hill Co. and its parent company, Gulf Resources and Chemical Corp., for $20 million.

RDF placed on alert status

WASHINGTON

The Reagan administration announced Tuesday that elements of the U.S. Rapid Deployment Force and U.S. warships in the Mediterranean and Middle East "have been placed on increased readiness" in the wake of Egyptian President Anwar Sadat's assassination.

The statement was released by the Pentagon and officials there, speaking anonymously, indicated the actions are intended as a warning to Libyan leader Moammar Khadafy or anybody else who might be tempted to move against Egypt and take advantage of any instability there.

CIA restrictions partially shelved

WASHINGTON

A pending presidential order would place fewer restrictions on CIA infiltration of domestic groups than an earlier draft that was shelved last March after a storm of protest, government sources said Tuesday.

The latest plan, if signed by Pres. Reagan, would replace restrictions imposed on U.S. intelligence agencies by Pres. Carter in 1978.

The new draft would permit secret infiltration of a U.S. organization simply if the action is judged necessary to achieve lawful purposes as determined by the agency head or his designee, sources said. The new draft does not specifically state that CIA infiltrations must be for obtaining "foreign intelligence," the sources said.

Oregon reps vote party lines

WASHINGTON

Oregon's U.S. representatives voted according to party lines Tuesday when the House defeated 249-168 an attempt to sidetrack the labor and health money bill which Pres. Reagan says busted his budget.

Democratic representatives Les AuCoin, Jim Weaver and Ron Wyden each voted with the majority to defeat the attempt to send the bill back to committee for more cuts.

House Republican whip Trent Lott of Mississippi said GOP leaders did not seek a recorded vote because the tally to recommit the measure told them what they wanted to know.

"We have the votes, with room to spare, to sustain a veto," Lott said.

Republican Denny Smith voted to send the $87.3-appropriations bill to committee.

House Republicans said the measure was more than $700 million above the budget resolution passed in May.

Derailment threatens area

MARYSVILLE, Wash.

Heavy rain and mud slowed repair crews Tuesday evening as they tried to right seven tankers carrying toxic and flammable materials, part of a 24-car freight train derailment.

Up to 5,000 local residents were evacuated after the Monday night derailment because five of the cars contained deadly liquid chlorine and two contained flammable isobutane, officials said.

The seven tankers stayed leakproof after tumbling off the tracks and no injuries were reported in the derailment, which officials said was caused by an axle failure.

However the outer shell of one double-walled chlorine tanker showed a 12-foot-long rip, witnesses said.
