

Students laud, blast, tolerate P.E. policy

"Please have your fee card and ID card ready," is the new greeting to all who desire to use the activity level at Esslinger Hall.

State budget cuts have slapped students, faculty staff and the outside community with a users' fee. Access to the recreation area is also restricted to one back door, and barbed wire surrounds the playing fields.

"Now that we are not funded fully (by the state), we have to make the students and community pay," says Diane Baxter, the head of service programs at the physical education department.

Baxter noted all state universities and colleges in Oregon are charging students. University students are not paying to use the facilities this term.

Students' reaction ranges from indifference, to anger, to favor regarding the limited access and the requirement to present a stamped fee card to enter the recreation area. Many have adjusted, and flash their fee card as they hurry by a watchful guard.

However, one student fumbling through his backpack to find the card, expressed a common sentiment.

"I don't know where my card is," said Will Anderson, searching in vain for the precious card. "It's a hassle — a major hassle."

There were other comments.

"It has made P.E. inaccessible to students," junior Jim Harshaw says. "It's a guard house," he says, referring to the barbed wire and locked doors.

"I think it's better than the whole public using the facilities," says Todd Walker. Walker works in the equipment room at Esslinger.

Despite more room for students in the facilities now that non-students are prevented from using them, people still are reluctant to accept the abrupt change in the way things are being handled at Esslinger.

"In three or four years they (students) won't think anything about it," Baxter says. "It's still a shock to me," she says, "I have to show a pass too."

Walker has already adjusted to the system.

"You take your pencil and pad to go to classes, so why can't you take your fee card to go to PE?" he says.

Yankees jump to 2-0 lead

John blanks Dodgers in second game of Series

NEW YORK (AP) — Tommy John capped a year of tribulation with seven innings of three-hit pitching and Rich Gossage applied his relief magic for the second straight night as the New York Yankees defeated the Los Angeles Dodgers 3-0 Wednesday night and took a two-game lead in the 1981 World Series.

John limited the Dodgers to three singles, two by Steve Garvey, before leaving for a pinch-hitter in the seventh inning. He pitched flawlessly for four innings, retiring the first 12 men he faced.

Gossage recorded his second straight World Series save and sent the Yankees to Los Angeles for Game 3 Friday night.

The Yankees broke the scoreless tie in the fifth inning. Randolph led off with a hard grounder that skipped off the glove and up the chest of Dodgers second baseman Davey Lopes for an error. John sacrificed Randolph to second and, one out later, Milbourne came to bat. In the previous half inning, an error by Milbourne almost had allowed the Dodgers to break through against John.

The utility infielder, playing regularly since Bucky Dent suffered a torn ligament in his hand, worked the count against Dodgers right-hander Burt Hooton to 3-2. The switch-hitter, batting left, sent the next pitch down the left field line. The blooper got over the head of third baseman Ron Cey and Randolph scored easily.

Hooton lasted through six innings, allowing one earned run in 27 2-3 post-season innings.

Lowly Seattle keeps Patera, keeps trying

SEATTLE (AP) — Judging the struggling Seattle Seahawks at their 32-0 whitewashing at the hands of the New York Giants in the Kingdome last Sunday, they may be the worst team in professional football.

They were blown out 35-17 the previous week in the Houston Astrodome and now have dropped 15 of their last 16 games. The immediate future looks dismal.

Of course, picking the National Football League's very worst team is highly subjective.

But the Seahawks certainly rate as a contender for that dubious distinction. After seven weeks, the Seahawks are one of five 1-6 teams in the 28-club NFL. The others are New Orleans, Baltimore, Washington and Chicago.

General manager John Thompson and managing general partner Herman Sarkowsky insist Seattle head Coach Jack Patera's job isn't in jeopardy.

Asked what would happen if the Seahawks wound up 1-15, a record that has to be considered a possibility off Seattle's dismal performance against the Giants, Thompson replied, "That's pure speculation. We're not going to go 1-15."
