Three win Fulbrights

Three University scholars have been awarded Fulbright fellowships to study and lecture abroad during the 1981-82 academic year. William Calin, a professor of Romance languages, will travel to France to be a visiting professor in French literature for the winter term at the University of Potiers. Carl Malmgren, an English instructor, is now in France lecturing on postmodern fiction and literary theory. John Lukacs, an assistant professor of anthropology, is in West Germany continuing his study of human biological variation in South Asia.
