Smokers cough up more tax

Starting today, smokers will have to pay more to light up.

The 1981 Oregon State Legislature passed a seven-cent increase in the price of a pack of cigarettes as part of a program to balance the budget.

The increase, the first since 1972, raises the tax from nine to 16 cents.

Presently, seven-ninths of cigarette tax revenues go into the state General Fund, with cities and counties dividing the remainder. Revenue generated by the tax increase will go to the state General Fund.

The state department of revenue, which collects the tax, will sell tax stamps at the higher rate to cigarette distributors. Each cigarette pack must bear the new stamp.

Revenue department officials will check for compliance with the new law as they visit retailers around the state.

ASHRAM

This film could be the most controversial and revealing film you will see this year. Filmed at the Bhagwan Shree Rajneesh's ashram (religious community) in Poona India in 1979, this film documents life at the ashram, including interviews and candid footage of many varieties of therapy employed, ranging from Tai Chi to the "encounter group" in which there are no restrictions on sex or violence. Rajneesh's followers are now starting a new community near Antelope, Oregon. This documentary will allow you to draw your own conclusions about the man and his philosophy.
