Rare artifacts show opens
Danzig lectures, movies slated

Yesterday's opening of the world-famous Danzig exhibit at the University Museum of Art is only the beginning of a great number of special events scheduled in conjunction with the exhibit.

The exhibit itself, featuring the most valuable collection of Judaic artifacts in Europe, will be shown through March 7.

Other events include:

- "Danzig as a Paradigm of Jewish History," a lecture by Jewish writer and historian Lucy Dawidowicz Jan. 14 at 7:30 p.m.

in the 167 EMU.

- "The Significance of the Danzig Collection," a lecture by Vivian Mann, curator of the exhibit from the Jewish Museum in New York. The lecture is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Jan. 18 in 167 EMU.
- "Ritual Art and the Sense of Community," a panel discussion about art and culture, will be held Jan. 19 at 7:30 p.m. in 107 Lawrence. Panel members include University faculty members and Vivian Mann.
- "Number Our Days," an Oscar-winning documentary about the Danzig exhibit will be shown at 7:30 p.m. on Jan. 20 at Temple Beth Israel, 2550 Portland St., Eugene.

- University history professor Roger Chickering will give a lecture on Danzig's Jewish population between the two World Wars at 7:30 p.m. Jan. 21 in 167 EMU.
- "Image Before My Eyes," a documentary about pre-WWII life in Jewish Poland, will be shown at Temple Beth Israel at 7:30 p.m. on Jan. 30.

To the Faculty of the University of Oregon:

Chancellor Lieuallen has failed, the State Board of Higher Education has failed, Governor Atiyeh has failed—all those to whom Oregon had entrusted the care of its colleges and universities. Now it is the Legislature's turn. We, the U. of O. Federation of Teachers (AFT 3209, AFL-CIO), urge you to join with public employees' unions and other groups in taking our case directly to the legislators.

Don't yield to the temptation to play "beggar-thy-neighbor" about how cuts should be made: across-the-board or selectively? Salary cuts or program reductions? The faculty was not consulted about such plans, nor will be consulted until collective bargaining comes to our campus. What we can do now is to write to our legislators today and urge them to find new revenues for higher education and human resources. We can urge them to stop the Atiyeh-fostered drift of state revenues away from state purposes (higher ed, human resources) toward local government (schools, property-tax relief). Oregon doesn't need a sales-tax, it needs only a state government with the courage to base taxes on ability to pay. We need, for example, a graduated corporate tax; and we need to recover for public purposes some of the estimated $600 million which, following the Reagan tax cuts, Oregonians will not pay in federal taxes.

Voices have been sounded in the Legislature against the Atiyeh "re-election budget-cuts." Let's support them. Write to your legislators today.
