Philadelphia paper publishes last issue

PHILADELPHIA

The Bulletin, once the nation's largest afternoon daily, announced Wednesday that it will publish its last edition Friday because of growing financial losses.

"I feel lousy about it," Publisher N.S. "Buddy" Hayden told hushed employees in the newsroom. "The hardest thing to do is close a great newspaper like this."

The 134-year-old newspaper becomes the fourth major daily to close in six months, joining the afternoon Washington Star, the afternoon Tonight edition of the New York Daily News and the morning Philadelphia Journal.

The Bulletin closing will affect 1,743 full-time employees, including 250 reporters and editors. It leaves the nation's fourth largest city with one newspaper owner, the Knight-Ridder group, which publishes the morning Inquirer and the afternoon tabloid Daily News.

For nearly a month, while The Bulletin was losing nearly $60,000 a day, Hayden and other executives negotiated with prospective buyers.

"After substantial discussions, each investor deemed the risks of loss to be too high and declined to proceed," said J.P.

Smith Jr., president of the Charter Co. subsidiary that bought full control of The Bulletin a year ago.

Williams connected to two more victims

ATLANTA

Wayne Williams asked for permission to take pictures at the scene where the body of one of 28 slain young blacks was found, and he may have provided a talent audition for another victim, witnesses testified Wednesday at his murder trial.

Williams, a 23-year-old black free-lance photographer and aspiring talent promoter, is charged with murdering Nathaniel Cater, 27, and Jimmy Ray Payne, 21, two of the youths whose deaths over a 22-month period have been investigated by a special police task force.

Two former sheriff's investigators testified that a man they later identified as Williams asked if he could take photographs of the body of Terry Pue, the 16th victim in the string of slayings, shortly after it was discovered beside a suburban road Jan. 23, 1981.

A friend of Joseph Bell, the 24th victim, said Bell told him he had responded to a talent advertisement placed by a man who resembled Williams.

Bell and Pue are among 10 slain young blacks — nine of them on the task force list — whom prosecutors contend can be linked to Williams. However, Williams is not charged in their deaths.

On Wednesday, prosecutors called a surprise witness, an unidentified 15-year-old black youth, who testified Williams made a homosexual pass at him.

Guerillas hijack Colombian jetliner

BOGOTA, Colombia

Leftist guerrillas hijacked a Colombian jetliner, forced the pilot to land at Bogota's airport and then took off again for an undisclosed destination, authorities said.

The hijackers, according to a Colombian radio broadcast had threatened to blow up the plane if the army moved in.

Officials said there were seven hijackers, who said they were members of M19, Colombia's most active guerrilla group.

The jetliner, a Boeing 727 from the Colombian airline Aerotal, was hijacked shortly after it took off from Bogota's El Dorado airport at 1:09 p.m. for the west-central city of Pereira. The plane returned to the Bogota airport at 1:34 p.m. under command of the hijackers.

In a radio call to the control tower, the hijackers demanded that a reporter from the Bogota newspaper El Espectador come aboard the plane to take a list of the hijackers' demands to Colombian authorities.
