Capital celebrates FDR centennial

WASHINGTON

Just two days after Pres. Reagan proposed dismantling much of Franklin Delano Roosevelt's New Deal, Congress is celebrating the centennial of FDR's birth.

Congress held its second joint session this week — the first was Reagan's State of the Union message — to commemorate Roosevelt, who was born Jan. 30, 1882.

Efforts were being made to keep the occasion non-partisan. As historian Arthur Schlesinger Jr. said, Roosevelt "was not a strict party man. He cast his first presidential vote for a progressive Republican... (and) appointed two Republicans to his Cabinet."

But only nine of the 53 Republican senators attended today's session. Vice Pres. George Bush represented the president. Also attending were U.N. Ambassador Jeane Kirkpatrick; Labor Secretary Ray Donovan; Richard Schweiker, the secretary of health and human services; and CIA Director William Casey.

And there were undeniable undertones. One of Roosevelt's sons, Franklin Delano Roosevelt Jr., rebuffed Reagan's luncheon invitation because the president failed to appoint a centennial commission.

"My father was a great conservationist," he said in a recent interview, "but the Reagan administration is undoing steps that my father's administration took 40 to 50 years ago. And the threat to Social Security concerns me very seriously."

Hijackers free jetliner hostages

CALI, Colombia

Seven heavily armed leftist guerrillas let 74 hostages leave a hijacked Colombian airliner Thursday, then boarded a small private jet and took off for an unknown destination.

Some of the hostages were put into the executive-type jet, according to Colombian army and civil aviation officials, and it was possible some remained aboard when the getaway plane took off from Cali airport.

An army source said earlier the guerrillas agreed to free all their captives except two in return for the small jet and safe passage out of the country.

The army also gave the guerrillas flight maps for all of Central America and the Caribbean, and there was speculation the hijackers might head to Cuba, about 800 miles northeast of Cali, or about 90 minutes flying time.

The guerrillas hijacked the airliner, an Aerotal airlines Boeing 727, Wednesday after taking off from the capital of Bogota with 115 other passengers and six crew members aboard.

The guerrillas forced the plane to the Cali airport, and released 47 passengers Wednesday night, including John Archolecas, of Deerfield Beach, Fla.

Archolecas told The Associated Press in a telephone interview that he saw another man with an American passport aboard the Boeing plane, but did not know who it was.

Reagan plans new aviation system

WASHINGTON

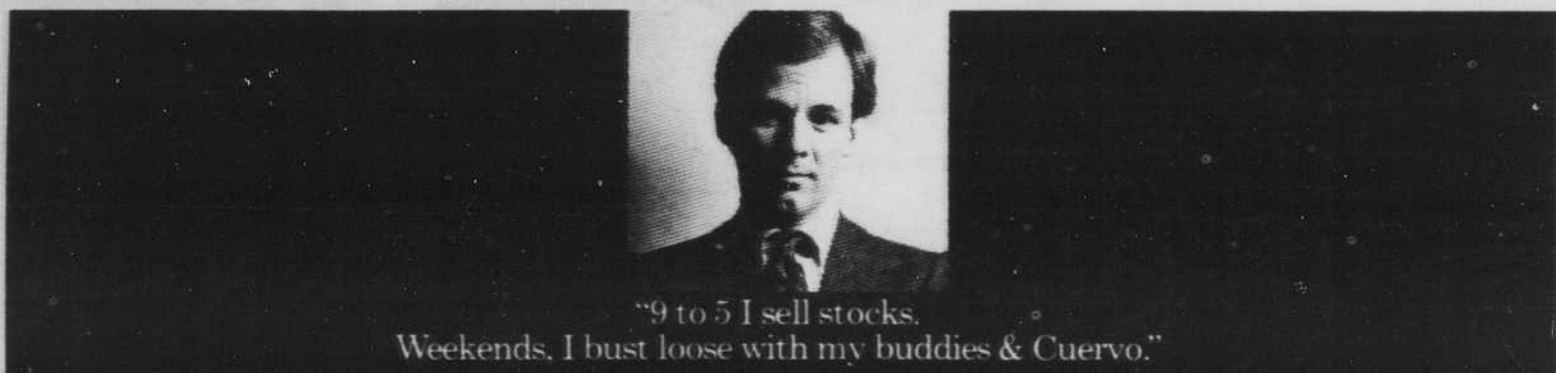

The Reagan administration said Thursday it will seek sharp increases in aviation taxes to pay for a $1-billion-a-year modernization of the air traffic control system — a plan that envisions shifting many duties from humans to computers.

The plan includes raising the tax on airline tickets from 5 percent to 8 percent. Taxes on regular and jet fuels also would be boosted.

Congressional sources estimated the cost of the modernization at between $8.3 billion and $10 billion.

The modernization program, unveiled by Helms in a two-hour briefing for industry representatives, calls for the purchase of new computers within the next few years, new software by 1988 and a variety of technology by the mid-1990s to allow the FAA to handle an increasing number of aircraft, reduce manpower, and close scores of facilities.

The Federal Aviation Administration estimates that over the next 20 years the automated system would allow savings of $25 billion, largely through lower maintenance costs, reduced manpower, and the reduction in the number of traffic routing facilities.
